ITALY EXPECTED TO RESIGN FROM LEAGUE

R.A.F. FLEET TO GUARD SUEZ

170 BATTLE PLANES ARRIVE

ITALY PREPARED FOR EVENTUALITIES

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Sept. 27, 8 a.m.)

Rome, Sept. 26.

The best informed authorities here interpret the League of Nations' Council action as meaning that it will be a matter of days before steps are taken at Geneva which will force Italy to resign her League membership, accept the Committee of Five's solution, or a solution offered by the Council which may be less generous to Rome.

The same authority stated that serious developments were expected, but that Italy was prepared for eventualities.

Meanwhile, Geneva has reminded Rome that Article XII of the Covenant prevents Italy waging war until after three months have elapsed from the time the Council issues its report and recommendations.

It is learned from Alexandria that 170 Royal Air Force planes have arrived to defend the Suez Canal.

London markets have rallied, following the developments at Geneva which showed that Britain will not be forced to act alone.

Paris, at this juncture, learns that diplomats in France are of the opinion that no 1936 naval conference is possible in view of the international situation.

From Addis Ababa comes the statement that reliable sources believe there are sufficient warriors stationed on the frontier to repulse the Italians' first attack, if it should come.

The Pope, meanwhile, will broadcast a radio-address to-night to the Eucharistic Conference at Cleveland, and will discuss the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.—United Press.

AEGEAN ACTIVITY

Athens, Sept. 26.

Large numbers of persons have been detained at Rhodes by the Italian authorities for discussing politics and upholding the attitude of Britain in the present crisis, according to reports received here.

Some 1,500 troops are stated to have arrived at Astropali Island, in the Dodecanese group, and are erecting temporary fortifications. Torpedo boats are stated to be patrolling the islands searching for suspected craft and they are preventing Greek people departing for non-Italian shores.

Developments are reported from other islands. The arrival of 23 aeroplanes, and two warships of small-tonnage at Carpathos, where troops and artillery are expected, are making necessary the commandeering of large houses and every casa of any size. These stops are being taken in view of the expected arrival of troops.

There has been a concentration at Calymnos of numbers of aircraft, submarines and torpedo boats.—Reuter.

CAMPBELL QUILTS SPEED DRIVING

WON'T RACE UNLESS RECORD BROKEN

London, Sept. 26.

Sir Malcolm Campbell says he has promised his wife that he will abandon speed racing unless some foreigner exceeds the record of over 301 miles per hour which he set up in Bluebird over the Utah salt flats recently.—United Press.

BRITAIN REFUSES FRENCH REQUEST

NO PROMISE OF SANCTIONS

COMPLICATION OF CRISIS

WILL FRANCE BACK DOWN?

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, September 27, 10.40 a.m.)

London, Sept. 26.

The Foreign Office has handed to M. Corbin, the French Ambassador to Britain, the British Government's Note refusing to give to France any advance assurance of military support against Germany, or any other European aggressor.

The Note emphasises that the British attitude generally favours collective actions against any aggressor, but theoretical future situations must be met when they arise.

The Note was an answer to the French enquiry, following Sir Samuel Hoare's speech at Geneva, outlining Britain's attitude with respect to sanctions in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

COMPLICATES POSITION

Diplomats view the reply as complicating France's position regarding sanctions against Italy.

It is believed that the recent Anglo-German naval accord may have modified Britain's position since the three-Power talks at Stresa, making specific assurances impossible.—United Press.

QUEZON VISITS COLONY

WANTS TO REST FOR A WEEK

GOING TO CANTON

Senator Manuel Quezon, President-elect of the Philippines, arrived here this morning aboard the President Jefferson from Manila, feeling much refreshed after his arduous election campaign.

He refused a long interview, saying: "I am here for a rest and to see off my friends, Senator and Mrs. Carlos Romulo, who are on a round-the-world trip."

Senator Quezon is staying at the Peninsula Hotel and is remaining for a week. He will probably visit Canton.

Senator Quezon has come here to find peace and quiet, and to have a short rest, and also to see off to America his friend Mr. Carlos P. Romulo who is en route to attend the Rotary International Convention to be held on October 20 at Chicago. Mr. Romulo, who is accompanied by his wife, will continue to America by the President Jefferson.

KING AND QUEEN

London, Sept. 26.

The King and Queen will conclude their holiday in Scotland tomorrow. They will travel by Royal train to London, arriving on Saturday.

On Thursday next, the King will hold a Privy Council at Buckingham Palace at which, it is expected, he will give his formal consent, under the Great Seal of England, to the marriage of the Duke of Gloucester.—British Wireless.

Britain is taking precautions for the protection of the Suez Canal. It is reported to-day that 170 war planes have been despatched for the purpose. Picture shows a British warship in the Canal.

SILVER PURCHASE CONTINUES

BILLION OUNCES TO BE BOUGHT

AMERICA'S PLANS

Washington, Sept. 26.

Senator King, after a call at the White House, said President Roosevelt was "satisfied" with the administration of the Silver Purchase Act.

In view of this statement, Senator King expects that the meeting of the special Senate Silver Committee scheduled to be held at Salt Lake City, on October 12, would not recommend modification of the Act.

Senator King added that purchases so far have exceeded 400,000,000 ounces, and acquisitions by purchase and otherwise would probably reach a billion ounces later.—Reuter.

STABILISATION FAVOURED

Geneva, Sept. 26.

The League Economic Commission has formally approved the Franco-British stabilisation compromise, and will recommend bilateral agreements embodying a reduction of trade barriers, making allowance for currency fluctuations.

It is stated that all Governments seeking the ultimate restoration of the gold standard have recommended that before it is re-established, the nations should make an effort to reduce tariffs. The wording of the recommendations is such as to permit quick revision in the event of the currencies of the signatory nations varying considerably.—United Press.

ASSEMBLY APPROVES

London, Sept. 26.

The Second Commission of the League Assembly to-day adopted the resolution moved on Tuesday by the British member, Dr. Leslie Burgin, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, recommending that Government should conclude bilateral agreements based on the most-favoured-nation clause, with the object of encouraging freer trade, subject, if necessary, to a provision that in the event of a large variation in the rate of exchange between the currencies of the contracting parties, the agreements may be reviewed at short notice.

The preamble recognised as the ultimate objective a return to the international gold standard, but points out that effective measures to remove impediments to world trade need not wait on restoration of the gold standard.

The Assembly is expected to conclude its business to-morrow, but in view of the international situation it will adjourn without dissolving.—British Wireless.

WORLD ECONOMIC PARLEY?

CONTEMPLATED AT GENEVA

NATIONS NEAR UNANIMITY

Geneva, Sept. 26.

There are indications here that efforts may soon be made to organise the World Economic Conference.

The Technical Commission has finished its work, but before adjourning it adopted a report on world trade, presented by the rapporteur, Mr. Lanschot of Holland.

This report is regarded as being of the greatest importance because it registers a measure of agreement almost unprecedented between the various nations as to the ills from which trade is suffering and the steps which should be taken to remedy the situation.

The report points to the rumour persistent in the lobbies at Geneva that an attempt will soon be made to reopen the World Economic Conference.—Reuter.

No Loan To Italy

RUMOUR OF FRENCH AID DENIED

Paris, Sept. 26.

Rumours which have been current recently to the effect that a private French loan has been granted to Italy are denied.

The rumours appear to have arisen owing to confusion from the arrangement whereby French banks are taking over 500,000,000 francs' worth of French Renten from the Italian Government. It is believed that these Renten will be placed with the French public.—Reuter-Special.

international gold standard, but points out that effective measures to remove impediments to world trade need not wait on restoration of the gold standard.

The Assembly is expected to conclude its business to-morrow, but in view of the international situation it will adjourn without dissolving.—British Wireless.

FRENCH HOPES DIMINISH

ITALY UNMOVED BY GENEVA STAND

HARSHER FORMULA FOR SETTLEMENT LIKELY

Paris, Sept. 26.

Hopes for the success of the Geneva talks and that their outcome will be a formula which will make possible the settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel, are steadily diminishing.

Le Temps, one of the best-informed Paris newspapers, in an editorial, declares: "Nothing is yet saved; all is not lost."

While it is generally agreed that there will be a breathing spell of ten or fifteen days for negotiations before sanctions procedure commences, the opposition of many members of the League to the Committee of Five's report is regarded by some as not encouraging. They draw from it the conclusion that the Council Committee's recommendations for settlement of the affair will be even less generous to Italy than those which the Committee of Five achieved.—Reuter.

FOREGONE CONCLUSION

Rome, Sept. 26.

To-day's proceedings at Geneva were regarded as a foregone conclusion here to-night and drew very little comment.

Authoritative quarters informed Reuter that the Italian delegation would stay at Geneva and patiently await the outcome of the Committee's deliberations. "But we have not much hope," a spokesman said.

It is declared here that one committee has succeeded another in the true "Geneva tradition," but that the second Committee begins its work with Italy in a very much stronger position since the report of the Committee of Five recognised the inability of Ethiopia to manage its own affairs.

TWO ALTERNATIVES

Writing in the Giornale d'Italia, Gayda says there are two ways in which the Covenant can be applied to the dispute. One is by the application of the first three paragraphs of Article XVI, which opponents of Italy's action hold justified sanctions. But the other is the fourth paragraph of Article XVI, providing for exclusion from the League of any member violating one or any of the undertakings of the Covenant.

In this instance the Covenant would be applied against Ethiopia, he pointed out.

He also discussed Article XIX.—Reuter.

LEAGUE DECISION

Geneva, Sept. 26.

The decision which the League Council reached at to-day's meeting, to take action with reference to the Italo-Ethiopian dispute under Clause Four of Article XV of the Covenant, involves preparation for the publication of a report containing a statement of the facts of the dispute and recommendations which are deemed justified.

This is not the first time the Council has decided upon such a course. Exactly the same procedure was adopted in the case of the Gran Chaco War and the Sino-Japanese dispute.

Britain also once invoked action under Article XV in an oil dispute with Iran which was finally settled by negotiation.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT CAMPAIGNS

Washington, Sept. 26.

President Roosevelt leaves to-night on his election campaign through the West and makes his first speech at Fremont, Nebraska, Saturday. He will be in Los Angeles on Monday, Hollywood on Tuesday and San Diego on Wednesday.—United Press.

Film Stars Still Twinkle After Quarter Of Century

"NEVER SAY DIE" ARTISTS OF SCREEN

Film fans, choking with emotion, frequently read harrowing tales of stars who twinkle for a while in the Hollywood firmament and then sink into dire poverty and obscurity.

But fact is stranger (and more reliable) than sob fiction, for there are no fewer than fifty-seven outstanding favourites of twenty years ago who are still earning from U.S. $1,000 to U.S. $5,000 weekly.

On analysis, it appears that the men whose popularity has endured outnumber the women by three to one.

Listen to these for a glittering constellation, still high in the heavens—Charlie Chaplin, Lionel Barrymore, George Arliss, Richard Dix, Warner Baxter and Tom Mix.

Enchantresses Still

And what about Richard Barthelmess, John Gilbert, Ralph Graves, Rod La Rocque, Conrad Nagel and Ben Lyon, all leads around 1918, who still play their love scenes with the old-time pep and passion?

Among the women, Mary Pickford, though inactive for the past two years, is by no means a "has-been," while Evelyn Brent, Marion Davies, Lila Lee—and Gloria Swanson still enchant their male fans, after seventeen years of stardom.

All of these players (as Variety, the American theatre newspaper points out) manage to refute the contention that the life of a picture favourite is of short duration.

In some cases these stars have held a prominent position for as long as a quarter of a century. Which proves that the public taste is not always fickle.

WHEN A FARMER THRASHED THE KING

THE KING SAID "I DESERVED IT, TOO"

Johannesburg, Sept. 10. A STORY of how an old Dutch farmer once saved the King from serious injury and thrashed him with a whip—is told by a correspondent to a Johannesburg newspaper.

The farmer arranged a shooting trip for naval cadets from the Cape. The cadets included the King, then fourteen-year-old Prince George, and his brother the Duke of Clarence.

The party set off in a mule-wagon, and the farmer gave instructions that nobody should shoot without his permission.

The Prince Fell Off
Suddenly a buck appeared, and Prince George, forgetting what the farmer had said, fired. The mules jumped, the wagon jolted, and the boy Prince fell off. The farmer just managed to turn the wagon aside so that the buck wheel missed the Prince.

Then, beside himself with anger the old man advanced on the sprawling boy and struck him with his whip. The hunt continued, and the incident was forgotten in the excitement of a good day's shooting. Years later Prince George, then Prince of Wales, visited South Africa again. He gave a luncheon to the old farmer and introduced him to the Princess of Wales (Queen Mary) as "the only man who ever thrashed a British Prince."

"And," said the Prince, "a better and more deserved spanking no king's son ever had."

VINDICATION—AFTER 15 YEARS

HOW ENGLISH TYPIST SAVED HER LOVER

London, Sept. 15. A woman who followed her French sweetheart to the dreaded Devil's Isle penal settlements, has been instrumental in securing his vindication.

Fifteen years ago Henri Laquedec was condemned to death for murder, and the sentence was only committed to one of transportation for life after much agitation. At the trial Miss Emily Hawke, a typist with a British minor water firm in France, swore that at the time of the murder Laquedec was with her, but the police denied this.

Later, however, she obtained permission to undertake nursing in the hospitals of the island of Saint Laurent du Maroni, one of the penal settlements.

Among the prisoners on the island was one named David Legros, who was afflicted with a form of leprosy.

No nurse could be found for him until Miss Hawke volunteered. Then, as he lay dying, he confessed, in the presence of Miss Hawke and a priest, to having shot a man in Paris and allowed an innocent man to take the blame.

As his story unfolded, Miss Hawke suddenly realised that this dying convict was the perpetrator of the crime for which her sweetheart had been wrongly sentenced.

£70,000 Before

Anxious Wait
For Parents In England

Manchester, Sept. 20.

IN their home in King's-Road, Chorltoncum-Hardy, Manchester, a father and mother are counting the days that will bring to an end their ten months' wait for news of their kidnapped son.

Since last October Mr. Rudolph Bosshardt, a missionary, and his companion, Mr. A. Hayman, a New Zealander, have been held captive by Chinese bandits.

Within a few days now Mr. and Mrs. Bosshardt will know whether their son is safe or—dead.

For the sake of other Europeans in China it was thought inadvisable to satisfy the fantastic demand of £70,000 ransom plus anti-aircraft guns.

Last November Mr. H. Becker, another missionary, set out on the dangerous task of negotiating with the bandits—without adequate funds.

He took his life in his hands. He found the bandits after a long search.

This week the headquarters of the China Inland Mission in London received this telegram from Shanghai:

"Have received telegram from Becker. Situation is very critical."

"Darkness Before Dawn"

The telegram can only have one meaning, but Mr. and Mrs. Bosshardt refuse to lose hope.

"My husband and I are praying that Mr. Becker may be successful," Mrs. Bosshardt said to me.

"We believe that the 'critical stage' that has just been reached is the darkness before the dawn." Prayers have been offered in Manchester mission halls for the safety of the captives.

Miss Grace Emblem, a woman missionary, and the wives of the two men were also captured. Mrs. Bosshardt and Mrs. Hayman escaped and Miss Emblem was released later.

Mother One Baby Nearer £100,000

Toronto, Sept. 15.

A NEW contender in the Canadian "Stork Derby" for a £100,000 prize appeared to-day.

Mrs. John Nagle gave birth to her tenth child since 1926, the year when Mr. Charles Vance Millar, eccentric lawyer, left £100,000 to the Toronto mother who in ten years bore the most children.

She claims leadership in the race with Mrs. Matthew Kenny, who has had thirteen children since 1926, alleging that Mrs. Kenny has registered only ten of her children, and only registered births count in the contest.

Mrs. Nagle's claim is likely to be short-lived, however. Mrs. Kenny, expecting her fourteenth child.

Another competitor is Mrs. Grace Bagnato, who states that eight of her twenty-two children have been born since Mr. Millar died.

to conduct their campaign by building a railway into Ethiopia from the south. Realisation of such an effort would require, under favourable circumstances at least two years, it is estimated. But once accomplished it would assure Italian victory.

Much of the Italian fighting would have to be in the lowlands in some parts of which lions, rhinoceros, and leopards roam, but it must be remembered that even the climate hardened Ethiopians, with exception of nomadic tribes, live above the 3,000 feet level.

The rolling green grass plains of Shoa and Gollam which the Italian force from the north would reach resemble the plains of Nebraska. The lakes and jagged mountains are reminiscent of the wilder parts of the Adirondacks. But in the lowlands malaria and typhoid are common. Numerous lepers roam the coun-

ABYSSINIA'S ALLY IN WAR WITH ITALY

WILD, STEAMING DISEASE RIDDEN LOWLANDS

London, Sept. 20.

ITALY intends to attack Ethiopia on two fronts during the first week in October and will be prepared for a four year campaign, according to expert Military opinion.

Italy will have the finest military equipment ever used in war. Ethiopia will have in its favour its formidable barriers and its wild, steaming, disease ridden lowlands.

Information in the hands of the British military intelligence is that Italian military leaders themselves believe it will take four years to conquer the country completely. That it can be conquered, there seems no doubt—but at a great cost in blood and money.

Whatever the outcome of war, British experts are now convinced that the Italians will launch their big scale military offensive during the first week of October.

The estimate of the time is reached by the experts on the conviction that the Italian will wait for between two and three weeks after the rains—which started full force in June—have begun to subside.

It is little known, incidentally that another rainy season starts on the low Danakil plain bordering Southern Eritrea in October, and that these rains spread slowly into the interior as far as Addis Ababa.

The Italians are expected to attack almost simultaneously from Eritrea, their northern colony, southward toward Addis Ababa, and from Somaliland, west-northwestward toward Addis Ababa.

In order to wipe out the bitter memory of their defeat at Adowa when Ethiopian warriors cut to pieces an Italian expeditionary force, killed or wounded 7,000 men and captured from 2,500 to 3,000 it is believed that one of the first Italian objectives will be Adowa, near the Eritrean frontier.

With airplanes, tanks and motorised artillery co-operating with infantry, the Italians are expected to strike southward from the region between Asmara, Eritrean capital, and Agordat. It was thought that a flanking column might advance southward from the neighbourhood of the Gulf of Zula.

In their advance from the Asmara front toward Adowa the Italians will be confronted by the first great natural barrier of Ethiopia—a gorge approximately 2,500 feet deep, which would be a grave obstacle until roads could be built.

According to British military observers the roads could be built only in full view of the Ethiopian outpost sharpshooters.

The Northern front battle line of the Ethiopians was expected, because of the nature of the terrain, to extend roughly from Axum, through the Adowa region, and eastward to Adigrat, paralleling the Eritrean frontier and some 25 miles south of it. It would be a line about 40 miles long, and probably defended by guerrilla methods.

Should the Italians advance from Somaliland, their southern colony, as they are expected to, obstacles even greater than in the north would face them.

The climate in the south is worse, the rivers feed vast swamps where fevers are bred, water supplies are lacking, broad areas are covered with thorns and jungle like brush through which an army could only with enormous difficulty hack its path. Even mechanized units would be severe-

27 Murders By Youth Aged 21 Years

CALIFORNIA POLICE HEAR A STRANGE CONFESSION

Auburn, Calif., Sept. 4.

Confession to 27 murders by a twenty-one-year-old youth has given the police here the problem of their lives. They do not know whether the young man, whose name is Earl Cramer, is a colossal liar or an outrageously cold-blooded slayer.

Detectives here have discovered two bodies following directions given by Cramer. They are those of John Kennett, aged sixty-five, and John Mangnan, aged seventeen.

Cramer has been charged with the murder of Kennett, and the police are now searching the desolate mining region of Placer County for further victims.

After confessing in detail to four murders, Cramer said to the police: "You go and find those bodies and then I'll tell you some more." He declared that his crimes extended over a period of four years.

"If you look in the old prospecting holes you could find men buried everywhere."

Cramer said he intended to tell the police about "two or three killings a day" until he had finished the list.

Unless Cramer gives the police detailed directions, the task of finding the bodies is almost insurmountable. The entire district is riddled with the shafts of scores of abandoned mines.

Cramer is displaying extraordinary vanity as he lies in his cell awaiting formal indictment. He seems anxious to know how much publicity he is getting, and reads eagerly all the newspapers he can get.

Originally Cramer was arrested on charges of stealing cattle. He admitted killing calves and drinking their blood, and while in prison astounded the police by his confession of mass murder.—United Press.

Washington, (D.C.), Sept. 15.

Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of the United States naval officer in the Honolulu honour-slaying trial, has disappeared from the fashionable Washington circles in which she used to move and is living a Bohemian life in the art colony at Carmel, California, writing her memoirs.

Mrs. Massie was attacked by natives in Honolulu in 1932. One native was killed. Lieutenant Massie and Mrs. Fortescue, his mother-in-law, accused of his manslaughter, were sentenced to ten years; later pardoned. Mrs. Massie won divorce at Reno last year.

JURY'S VERDICT

ACCIDENTAL DEATH OF CHEUNG CHAU MAN

"We return a verdict of accidental death, and strongly recommend that the Electric Light Company of Cheung Chau take stricter precautions—with high tension wires and warn people of the great danger. Danger signs in English and Chinese should also be erected."

This verdict was brought in by the jury at the conclusion of a Coroner's inquiry into the death of Yip Lai, a shop fold, of the Hing Lung grocery store, No. 389, Chung Hing Street, Cheung Chau, who was electrocuted as a result of a high tension wire coming into contact with a flagpole he had climbed on July 30 at that address. The inquiry was held by the District Officer, South, Mr. G. S. Kennedy-Skipiton.

The jury comprised Messrs. F. N. Cunha (Foreman), N. U. Botelho and J. Wade.

Ballistic Evidence. Mr. J. D. Bicknell, Land Ballist at Cheung Chau, was called to give evidence as to whether or not he had permitted the owners of the house to have a flagpole so near the high tension wires.

Witness stated that he was asked for a permit to build a house by the village elder, Wong Ying. He did not make inspections from time to time as the building was

HONAN'S FLOODS

NEARLY FOUR MILLION REFUGEES

Kaifeng, Sept. 26. According to an official report issued by the Honan Provincial Government no less than sixty counties in this Province have been affected by the recent flood, and the total damages is put at over 60 million dollars.

The report includes the following statistics compiled by the Provincial Flood Relief Commission from reports submitted by their inspectors: The total area of the flooded districts is 38,160 square miles and the death toll is 5,273. The total area of rice fields flooded is 9,437,387 mu. The number of houses, completely or partially destroyed by flood water is 565,491, and 3,722,010 refugees are in need of relief.

The Honan Government has sent copies of the report to the National Relief Commission and to all charitable authorities in the Country appealing for help.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

NAVAL ACTIVITY

STRONG BRITISH FLEET AT NAVARINO

London, Sept. 26. British naval activity in the Mediterranean is increasing despite diplomatic reports of improved Anglo-Italian relations.

A fleet of 26 battleships and cruisers and 45 destroyers and fleet auxiliaries has entered Navarino, in Greece, and nine destroyers have augmented the British naval force off Haifa.—United Press.

P. and O. Rumour. Singapore, Sept. 28. The local agents for the P. & O. Co. have notified passengers that the Company's steamers might be diverted from their normal course without notice.—United Press.

On enquiry from Messrs. Mackinnon, Mackenzie and Co. we were informed that no intimation had been received at their office.

only to be temporary. He admitted that he may have made a casual inspection, but not an official one to report on.

Mr. Kennedy-Skipiton: One witness said you inspected the structure when the flagpole and T shaped iron were in position.

Official Inspection. Mr. Bicknell: I did not make an official inspection.

This witness said you paid several visits the final one being official?—All I can say is that I do not remember.

In summing up, the Coroner said that the jury had to consider three possibilities for cause of death. The first was that the Government should not have permitted the erection of the flagpole, the second that the permittee should not have erected the flagpole in such a dangerous position, and thirdly, that the Electric Light Company should have made some objection and called attention to the closeness of the pole and the high tension wires. There were no suggestions, he said, that the high tension wires were in a bad condition, but they did not seem to be inspected very often. He informed the jury that it is out of the question to consider running these wires underground as they barely pay as it is.

The jury returned the verdict given above.

WOMAN DISAPPEARS

COMPLAINANT MISSING FROM HER RESIDENCE

Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, received his decision in a case in which three men, Li Lin, Lai Yun-chai and Ma Shui-long, were charged with intimidating Tang Chun, married woman, at the Chiu Hoi tea house, Wanchai Road, with a view to compelling her to join an illegal society.

Third defendant, who was also charged with possession of a police whistle, was fined $5, or in default seven days' hard labour, on this charge.

At the first hearing of the case, defendants were unrepresented, but yesterday Mr. Leo D'Almada (anr.) appeared on behalf of all of them. The prosecution was conducted by Detective Sergeant D. Fitches, who at the outset said that the complainant had not arrived in Court, and had been missing from her home for the past two days, and could not be located by the Police.

Gave Complainant Loan

The evidence for the prosecution having closed at the last hearing, and Mr. Schofield holding that defendants had a case to answer, the first defendant, Li Lin, took his stand in the witness box and said he had been introduced to the complainant in last year. On September 10, August last year, he had given her a loan of $10, which she had asked for, saying she would pay it back when she had the money. He saw her on August 29 last, and she promised to pay back the money on September 3. On that day, he went to the tea house with the other defendants, and was served tea by her. She then asked him to come on September 8. He did not strike her then, nor did he ask her to join an illegal society. He did not say anything else to her. On September 8, he met the second defendant, and after going to the theatre they went to Johnstone Road, and were arrested by the Police. They met the third defendant there.

Second defendant corroborated first defendant's story with regard to the arrest, and also stated that last year he had lent first defendant $10, and when he pressed for the money in August this year, first defendant told him that the complainant owed him $10, and he would repay when he got the money from the woman. He was with the other two defendants in the tea house, on September 3, and heard first defendant ask the complainant for the money, but nothing else was said. The complainant promised to pay on September 8, and they left.

Counsel's Submissions

Mr. D'Almada said he would not call the third defendant, as there was no evidence against him. The charge, said Mr. D'Almada, was one of intimidating the complainant with a view to compelling her to join an illegal society, but there was no evidence of any such threat on September 3, or on divers dates. The only evidence was that of the complainant herself, who said that first defendant had threatened her that if she did not pay $30 to join the society, he would get her into trouble. The evidence of the prosecution's witness, Mr. Fitches, was also in the favour of the defence, and with regard to the allegation made by complainant that first defendant had struck her, it could hardly be believed, because if she had been struck she would have shouted for help.

Mr. Schofield then reserved his decision until noon on September 30.

Do you get headaches at the end of the day?

Do you feel "all in" at the end of the day's work—nervy, irritable, unable to concentrate? Ten to one it's your eyes that are the whole cause of the trouble.

Your eyes never get a moment's rest. All through the day they are hard at work, constantly focussing and re-focussing, concentrating on written and printed matter, often under artificial light and in a close, smoky atmosphere. Even when you relax they still have a gruelling time, exposed to the fast-moving lights of traffic, the flickering of a cinema screen, the constant irritation of tobacco smoke.

There's one sure way to put an end to those recurrent headaches—bathe your eyes with Optrex night and morning. This gentle tonic lotion soothes away soreness and tiredness, and cleanses the eyes of all impurities. Optrex gives your eyes a new lease of vigorous life, enabling you to tackle the hardest day's work without the slightest sensation of eyestrain.

THE FUTURE OF ETHIOPIA

One of the most surprising suggestions made in connection with the Italo-Ethiopian dispute was that recently put forward by a French commentator, who urged Signor Mussolini to accept the proposals advanced by the Committee of Five, saying it represented an offer which saved the face of the League but outwardly preserved Ethiopia's independence. The commentator added that "in a few years, under the cloak of international supervision, Italy could have the finances, politics, and economic life of the country, and thus the whole country, under her control." Happily, this does not represent the official French viewpoint, but the implications are such that they can hardly be permitted to pass unnoticed. Actually, the Committee of Five has in no sense sought to save the face of the League, nor do its proposals infringe the independence of Ethiopia, a fact which is amply proved by Ethiopia's willingness to accept the scheme of assistance put forward. The whole object of the League's intervention in the dispute is based on a desire to do justice to Italy, and, at the same time, to protect Ethiopian independence in the process. No plan of settlement which ignores this latter point can possibly be acceptable to Ethiopia nor square with the principles on which the League is acting. It is apparent, however, that Italy's policy is based more on a desire to secure complete overlordship of Ethiopia than to secure protection for her colonies. So much is obvious from the claim put forward by Baron Aloisi that "Ethiopia should be rendered innocuous." On this point, the Italian delegate, commenting on the Committee's scheme of assistance, argues that there have already been too many specialists sent to Ethiopia, remarking that all that these specialists have done is to raise the Ethiopian forces to a modern state of efficiency, which was all the more dangerous to Italy. Reading between the lines, it would appear that Italy is willing that Ethiopia should be modernised, on Italy's own terms, in all other respects than in the matter of defence against possible aggression. In other words, Rome wants a weakened, and not a strengthened, Ethiopia next door to her African colonies. Once that position were created, the task of Italian penetration would

NOTES OF THE DAY

AFTER MUSSOLINI... WHAT?

There are rumours, given prominence by the radical press of Paris, that Signor Mussolini's position at the head of the Italian state is not as secure as is popularly supposed. It is even suggested that Il Duce may be replaced as head of the Fascist Government of Italy. That might mean the end of the dictatorship, and, quite conceivably, of the Fascist party's power in the country. At the moment, we do not predict any such event, and it is safe to say that the mass of the Fascist organisation is loyal to its chief, and that any move on the part of opponents to displace him would result in civil war. However, if Signor Mussolini is determined to proceed with his campaign against Ethiopia, flaunting the Powers represented on the League Council and scrapping Italy's pledges under the Kellogg Pact and subsequent treaties, it would be better for the peace of Europe if he were to be removed, even at the cost of imperilling Italy's internal peace. But again, it is unlikely that he will be. Whether it is true or not, it seems to be the feeling in Italy that if Mussolini is deposed, or disposed of in some other fashion, the country will descend into chaos. True enough is the argument that the form of Government Italy possesses, concentrated in the hands of one man, is a dangerous thing to tamper with and that it is likely to cause catastrophe if its head is suddenly struck off. There is always the danger of rivalry within the party, as we saw recently in the lesser case of Senator Long's dictatorship in Louisiana, which appears to have ended with that autocrat's assassination. At the same time, the Fascist machine is apparently well organised and sufficiently powerful in Italy to survive even such a storm as Mussolini's passing would cause, and we cannot think that Italy's case would be so desperate as many imagine in the event of his relinquishing the reins of Government. Some day he must retire. Presumably he plans to hand on his command to a suitable successor. That man may have been chosen already, and may be waiting for the call, and have all the qualities of leadership and statesmanship which are necessary attributes of Caesar. There is no justification for saying that after Mussolini must come chaos. It would be as fair to say that if he remains he will lead his country down the bloody paths of war. If both assertions are true Italy's plight is pitiful indeed, and her future unpleasant to contemplate.

One of my fellow prisoners—an Armenian professor of statistics—had formerly been in Siberia, exiled with several of the present Soviet leaders, and he spoke with admiration of a Georgian named Dzhughashvili. According to him, no man had ever been so brave (except, of course, Lenin), the Armenian national hero, and there was no doubt this Georgian was a coming man. Few of the other prisoners had heard of him, but when they were reminded his name was now Stalin—"man of steel"—they remembered he had been with Lenin during the critical days of the October revolution and knew him as a fine organiser.

This is his eleventh year in supreme control of Russia, and however much we may abhor the methods by which the revolution has been brought about, the work that has been done among that vast, illiterate, dull, and semi-barbaric people is certainly stupendous. There have been many changes in method since Lenin's death, and to-day, although Russia is may be called a Socialist State, it is certainly not a Communist one. In the early days of Communism the members of the party were willing supporters of a Spartan code of discipline and moral strictures. Drinking alcohol was forbidden; exhibitions of personal selfishness or temper were sufficient for expulsion from the party, and rigid equality was insisted on in food and comforts. Now that so many more leaders, foremen, and executive officers are needed for the ever-increasing development of the country the code has been loosened, and there is no longer that rigid difference between actual and non-members of the Communist Party.

Gradually a bourgeoisie is arising, though it is not one based on wealth but on service quality. It

HELPLESSNESS OF MAN

We are striving to discover a means of permanently averting war. The world's greatest diplomats are pondering the puzzle of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, and they can find no compromise. And what a small hope they have, if the inadequacy of man's intelligence is to be judged by his acceptance of defeat in other things, less dangerous, perhaps, but still important. For years men have been trying to get rid of old razor blades, and although they have buried them deep in their back gardens, wrapped them in tin boxes and stuffed them into the dustbin, or thrown them into the sea, they are still a source of worry to the masses. Man has learned to fly and to travel under the sea; he has made light and fire and diamonds and cinemas, and wonderful weapons for killing his fellow men. But he has found no safe place to put his old razor blades, and he has as yet been unable to find a certain means of preventing war. We can avert war... sometimes... yes; but what about to-morrow? Shall we be able to avert it again? Shall we solve the problem of old razor blades by storing them in a dark closet, one by one, to be thrown away at some later date, by someone who may blunder in and cut his fingers on them?

be rendered all the easier. The nations which are standing up for vital principles in this dispute could not possibly countenance such a method of dealing with the situation. Whatever settlement is reached must, above all else, ensure the integrity and independence of Ethiopia. No arrangement which falls short of this requirement can be regarded as either adequate or fair.

ADVICE TO SOVIET MAN OF IRON

BY OLIVER BALDWIN

IT is just over fourteen years ago that I had the misfortune to spend many uncomfortable and frightening weeks in a Russian prison, and the result of my sojourn there has left me with a great respect for political prisoners and a great terror of prisons in general.

When this unpleasantness descended upon me and I was herded among a strange medley of once prosperous capitalists, former exiled Socialists, and Communists who had been imprisoned for drunkenness or failure to keep within the strict moral code of the revolution, I heard much talk of Lenin and Trotsky.

Admiral Kolchak had gone to his end violently enough; General Denikin had been awarded an English K.C.B. and was in France; and General Wrangel had just been defeated. All this had been due to Lenin and Trotsky. One of my fellow prisoners—an Armenian professor of statistics—had formerly been in Siberia, exiled with several of the present Soviet leaders, and he spoke with admiration of a Georgian named Dzhughashvili.

According to him, no man had ever been so brave (except, of course, Lenin), the Armenian national hero, and there was no doubt this Georgian was a coming man. Few of the other prisoners had heard of him, but when they were reminded his name was now Stalin—"man of steel"—they remembered he had been with Lenin during the critical days of the October revolution and knew him as a fine organiser.

This is his eleventh year in supreme control of Russia, and however much we may abhor the methods by which the revolution has been brought about, the work that has been done among that vast, illiterate, dull, and semi-barbaric people is certainly stupendous.

There have been many changes in method since Lenin's death, and to-day, although Russia is may be called a Socialist State, it is certainly not a Communist one. In the early days of Communism the members of the party were willing supporters of a Spartan code of discipline and moral strictures. Drinking alcohol was forbidden; exhibitions of personal selfishness or temper were sufficient for expulsion from the party, and rigid equality was insisted on in food and comforts.

Now that so many more leaders, foremen, and executive officers are needed for the ever-increasing development of the country the code has been loosened, and there is no longer that rigid difference between actual and non-members of the Communist Party. Gradually a bourgeoisie is arising, though it is not one based on wealth but on service quality. It is now that the skilled workman and the intellectual are taking the places formerly held by the landowners and industrial magnates, and because of their position of authority they naturally tend to form a class by themselves.

Slowly Russia is becoming self-supporting, and with the increase of means of transport the standard of living is bound to rise. The most striking thing in the country to-day is the poor material of the people's clothing, but there is no reason why, under the guidance of the American and British experts, factories may not be erected to deal with this weakness.

Russia has not yet overcome her difficulties with her own peasants. Immediately after the revolution these peasants were promised their own land, and naturally enough when they entered into possession they thought they could do what they liked with their own. It did not enter their heads that organisation would be needed so that their produce might be available for others than themselves, and as they are illiterate it is taking much patience and energy to "bring them into line."

So much has Stalin done for them; but against it looms the great shadow of the police, the prisoners who have not agreed with the powers that be, the old Russian prison methods of which I had my share, and the continuance of exile. Surely by now the Russian system is strong enough to withstand criticism. Surely a new Russia should be able to get away from those very police methods under which her pioneers suffered for so long. There can be no whole-hearted sympathy with the great Russian experiment until these anachronisms are removed.

It is time "my friend Stalin" changed this and made Russia as free a country as our capitalist one, for a start. Before the war, it is perhaps interesting to recall, international Socialists—looked upon as anarchists, murderers, or lunatics—held conferences in the different capitals of Europe. Among the numbers of that international of "dangerous fanatics," either as delegates or members, were the following men:—Lenin, Trotsky, and Stalin of Russia, Mussolini of Italy, Pilsudski of Poland, Vandervelde of Belgium, Ebert of Germany, Branting of Sweden, Troelstra of Holland, Viviani, Briand, and Millerand of France, and MacDonald and Snowden of England. Four dictators of their country, five Prime Ministers, one President, and four Ministers of State.

I mention this, among other reasons, because I believe "my friend Stalin" may go down to history as the greatest of them all.

The Very Idea!

ABOUT FIREMAN

Writing In Our Asbestos Underpants
Edited by Eddie

A WOPPING big fire has destroyed property valued at a million quid at Wopping. That's what we call a real fire. But it was tough on the firemen.

Having been a fireman for eleven years we are in a position to state that a fire is the worst thing that can happen to a fireman.

Imagine yourself sitting behind three Aces and a pair of Jacks and a dollar thirty-five in the kitty and some mug phones about a fire in Pinkadoodle Street.

The engine you have been polishing every day for six months has to be brought out and have its polish ruined.

We shall never forget the time when a gentleman said to the brigade, "Will you spray some water on them ungettridable socks." Otherwise, we'll never be able to get rid of 'em as slightly damaged by water.

It is untrue that a fireman takes his hat off with a tin opener.

Firemen get dressed in a few seconds. This sounds a bit hurried; but imagine the long sleep they can have when there's no fires.

After every fire a fireman hangs his hose up, whether it's Christmas or not.

We gave up being a fireman some time ago.

For one thing, the suspense of waiting for no fire to happen ruined our nervous system, and another thing, we got three convictions for exceeding the speed limit.

Another reason was that we had to give up visiting our girl friend, because every time we turned out the light the place used to burst into flames and it got that way that all our co-workers were ever cluttering up the place.

And another thing, nobody's going to tell us to go to blazes.

STIFF

(With apologies to all concerned).

If you are broke, with nothing in the larder,

And rent and bills and payments overdue,

If day by day, life's weary road seems harder

And shroffs are clamouring for you,

If you've no hope of finding a bonanza

The sort that yields twelve ounces to the ton,

Then, with our Ed. and him that's penned this stanza,

You are a modern Hongkongite, my son.

HOOP-LA

ABOUT this chap we read about in the Telegraph who is skipping from Sydney to Melbourne without stopping.

Pooh! We know dozens of chaps who've skipped from Hongkong. Ask some of our taipan firms.

The Australian chap is skipping for a wager. The only difference is that the Hongkong skippers skip with their wages.

We often wonder who would be willing to lay wagers on freak contests. We are going to start one of them.

We shall challenge our Editor to push a wheelbarrow across Siberia, hopping on one foot. And when he comes back and puts his barrow wearily down outside our flat the neighbour in the flat below will say: "Kelly? He left here a week ago."

And we shall go to the Chief Accountant at the H.K. & S. Hotels and say to him: "Excuse me, but would you mind bowling a hoop around the world for a bet?"

Then we would go along to the chap who has a 2 a.m. radio set in the flat above and say: "We bet you aren't game to sit on a two hundred foot pole for about six years."

And then we had got them all sitting on poles, and pushing barrows, and walking from Hongkong to Haifa, and slipping on banana skins from Kowloon to Bulchistan, we would sit down, fold our hands one within the other, and begin to enjoy life.

man Government, left here this morning to participate in a hunting party arranged by General Goering.

General Goombes will visit Berlin and meet Herr Hitler.—Reuter's Special Service.

It will be recalled that it was at a similar hunting party arranged by General Goering that the German-Pollish rapprochement was set on foot.

"CAPTAIN FOSTER" REVIEWS SATURDAY'S RACING

THRILLS GALORE AT HAPPY VALLEY

HANDICAPPER'S SMART WORK IN ISLAND BAY EVENT

ABLE AMAZON CREATES RECORD FOR AUSTRALIAN PONIES

(By "Capt. Foster")

The feature of the Eighth Extra Race Meeting under the auspices of the Hongkong Jockey Club which was held last Saturday under ideal weather was, as predicted, that Able Amazon (an Australian Sub-Griffin of 1934 owned by Mr. "Fats"han) established a new record for five furlongs, lowering the previous best time by a second.

The best race of the day was in the Island Bay Handicap "C" Class (First Section) in which, after a most exciting and thrilling finish, the judges had, after careful deliberation, to award a "Dead Heat" to Soldier of Pence and Monoplane. Had the latter won, the solitary holder of the ticket for the second leg of the Daily Double Event would have collected over $2,300 instead of $1,152.80. In my notes I said that the Handicapper had set a knotty problem for fans to spot the winner in this race and I very much regret that none of my nominations was placed.

The starting under the able guidance of Mr. Alec. Potts was perfect, and is deserving of the highest praise. Mr. Donald Black was to be congratulated for his sound judgment in riding three winners and a third, while Mr. Leo Frost was next best with two firsts and two seconds, and Messrs. G. Roza and Pih scored one win each. Messrs. Dietz and Pih had a "dead heat" for a Win, the latter eventually breaking his "duck" for the year.

THE OPENING EVENT

The curtain raiser was in the Big Wave Bay Handicap (Six Furlongs) when nine ponies lined up for the race. Running away tactics, which proved fatal were adopted by Clear View, Flybynight and Harvest View. The race was too fast altogether, especially in the first quarter as the Black Horse was covered in 24.4/5th seconds while the first half was run in 50.1/5th. Mr. Black on Bonny Dundee preferred a waiting race and on coming into the straight for the home run, he had no difficulty in overhauling Clear View, who by this time was labouring, and won in easy fashion with 10 lbs. to spare. Foxbridge did not have a good start, but nevertheless had no trouble to beat Harvest View who just managed to nose out his stable companion, Clear View, for a place. I said last Friday that Harvest View was on the fat side but that he might be placed. He was and paid $46.

As predicted, and favoured with glorious weather, Able Amazon had no difficulty in establishing a new record, namely 1.02.3/5th seconds, with 105 lbs. (10 lbs. over Weight for Inches) in the Corcoran Handicap, Five Furlongs race, lowering Shooting Star's record by a second. It was a grand race to watch and I firmly believe that Able Amazon could knock off another second or more as, after the distance post, Mr. Leo Frost was only sitting on his heels.

At the release of the barrier in what was incidentally the best start of the day, Derby Day (Mr. Butler) made the running and it may be interesting to know that the mare covered the first furlong in 12.3/5th seconds and the next two were done in 24.1/5th seconds but when rounding the bend for the straight, Mr. Butler called on Derby Day for a final spurt to which she could not respond. Just before the distance post, Able Amazon, who was always at the rear, drew level with Derby (Continued on Page 9.)

FORMER OXFORD GOLFER

BEATEN IN FINAL AT STOCKHOLM

SWEDISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP

Stockholm, Sept. 1. K. Morrice, the former Oxford University golf captain, was beaten in the final of the Swedish amateur open golf championship over thirty-six holes to-day by G. Falk, of Stockholm, at the 37th hole. Falk is the first Swede to win the Swedish open amateur since 1913.

Morrice was one up at lunch, and actually three up at the twenty-first; but at the twenty-fifth the Oxonian had the misfortune, when stymied, to knock his opponent's ball into the hole to lose a hole which he should have won. Falk was then only two down instead of four, and he squared the match at the 34th.

Morrice had his chance then, for he won the thirty-fifth to become dummy one, but Falk, his steadiness, unshaken, took the thirty-sixth, and on they went to the thirty-seventh. Both hit good drives, but Falk was on the green with his second, whereas Morrice was a shade short. Morrice was short with his run-up and left himself a long putt, whereas Falk was only a yard from the hole. Morrice made a bold bid and his putt nearly dropped, but it was a shade hard and, after hitting the lip of the hole, stopped out. Falk made no mistake and the match was his. Morrice was round in 156, with scores of 76 and 80. Falk was round in 152 with scores of 77 and 75. Par for the course is 71.

MISS RAMSDEN LOSES

In the final of the women's championship Miss A. Ramsden (Sunningdale) lost her Swedish title, being beaten in the 36 holes final by Miss K. Timberg by one hole, after being three up at the end of the first 18 holes.

The Scottish Football League has announced that their match against the English League has been arranged to take place at Throx Park, Glasgow, on Wednesday, October 30.

Yankees Win Again From Senators

ONLY ONE MATCH PLAYED

BASEBALL IN AMERICA

New York, Sept. 26. Only one match was played in the major baseball leagues to-day, this being between the Washington Senators and New York Yankees.

The New York outfit again beat the Senators, winning by four runs to two. This was the only fixture scheduled in the American League. In the National League there was only one match scheduled, this being between the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals, but owing to rain the fixture was postponed.

NEW READING MANAGER

ANOTHER OF BOLTON'S FAMOUS FORWARDS

The accession of William Butler to the post of honour at Reading means that four great forwards associated in their prime with the Bolton Wanderers club are now football managers.

Butler follows in the wake of Joe Smith (Reading's former manager, who is now in charge at Blackpool), David Jack (Southend) and Ted Vizard (Swindon).

The new Reading manager, who joined the club as an outside-right soon after Joe Smith took over and had been signed on again for this season, is a native of Atherton and his father was a Rugby player.

Mr. H. H. Palmer, who has been connected with Chelsea for nearly 24 years, will take over the assistant-secretaryship rendered vacant by the death of his brother, Mr. A. J. Palmer.

CHINESE GIRL'S AMAZING TENNIS

WINS 61 GAMES IN A ROW

"NOT SO GOOD" AT SCHOOL!

(By Stanley N. Doust)

London, Sept. 2. Won 61 games in succession in a lawn tennis championship. Lost only five games in six rounds of the singles.

Won the singles, doubles, and mixed doubles.

These were the achievements of Miss Gem Hoahing, the 14-year-old Chinese girl, in the Middlesex Junior lawn tennis championships at Harrow on Saturday.

She played five rounds to reach the final of the girls' singles and won them all by 6-0, 6-0. She won the first game in the final against Miss A. Cardinal (whom she eventually beat by 6-4, 6-1) to give her the total of 61 games in a row. This is a world's record for any player in a championship event.

To lose only five games in six rounds equals the record set up by Miss Suzanne Lenglen, who won at Wimbledon in 1925 with the loss of five games.

Miss Hoahing is the smallest lawn tennis player who has ever won a championship. She is just 4ft. high.

She is, however, not so good at school as she is on the tennis courts. Mrs. Hoahing, her mother, lamented this fact to me.

"Gem," she sighed, "is backward at school."

"When her report came in she said to me, 'It is not so good, mother, and it is not so bad. I am second from the bottom of my class.'"

Miss Hoahing is a pupil at the Twickenham County School.

TOO YOUNG FOR WIMBLEDON

Not Eligible For Junior Title

There are 51 entries for the boys' singles and 95 for the girls' singles in the Junior Championships of Great Britain, which were begun on the hard courts of the All-England Club at Wimbledon early this month, and there are 20 pairs in the boys' doubles and 42 pairs in the girls' doubles.

Neither R. E. Mulliken nor Miss D. Rowe is defending in the singles events.

Miss G. Hoahing, who has twice won the girls' singles in the Middlesex Junior Championships, and who also won the open singles in the Schoolgirls' Tournament, is not yet 15 years of age, and therefore still too young to enter.

BRITISH WOMEN GOLFERS

SUCCESS IN AUSTRALIA

CHAMPIONSHIP AT MELBOURNE

Melbourne, Aug. 29. All the members of the British women's golf team qualified for the match-play stage at Melbourne of the Australian Championship.

Miss Jessie Anderson headed the list with 161, Miss P. Wade was second with 162, and Miss Pam Barton and Mrs. J. B. Walker tied for third place with 163. Mrs. Greenlees was equal sixth with 168. Miss Barton's second round of 78 was a new record for the course.

The sixteen qualifiers will play the first round for the championship to-day.

FIRST ROUND MATCHES

Melbourne, Aug. 30. Three members of the British touring team, Miss Pam Barton, Mrs. J. B. Walker and Mrs. W. Greenlees, were successful in the first round of the Australian Women's Golf Championship, which commenced here to-day. Miss Jessie Anderson and Miss Wade were eliminated.

Miss Anderson, handicapped by a septic hand, was only defeated by one hole by Miss McLeod, three times winner of the championship. Miss Wade was beaten by Mrs.

A. W. GRIMMITT DROPS OUT

NOT PLAYING IN INTERPORT

A. W. Grimmer, selected as No. 3 to A. M. Holland for the second match in the forthcoming lawn bowls interport against Shanghai, will not be playing.

According to Grimmer himself he is leaving for the North early to-morrow morning in company with his daughter who is going on a health trip.

Grimmitt's place will most probably be taken by J. Fraser.

Morpeth, two up. Mrs. Morpeth was formerly Miss Susan Tolhurst, of Victoria, and has won the championship on two occasions.

MIXED FOURSOMES. After finishing an equal first, Mrs. Walter Greenlees, of Troon, and an Australian, Mr. Dalrymple, were disqualified in the Australian Mixed Foursomes Golf Championship at Melbourne owing to a wrongly-marked card, according to a Reuter's message. They had rounds of 83 and 78—161. Another Anglo-Australian pair, Mrs. J. B. Walker (Island, Malahide), and Mr. Guest, tied for first place with Mr. Rae and Miss Marrie at 161, their respective rounds being 79 and 82 and 82 and 79. They will play off on Thursday.

Two other Anglo-Australian pairs finished equal second with 164. Miss Phyllis Wade (Ferndown) and Mr. Ivor Whitton and Miss Jessie Anderson (Craigie Hill), and Mr. Harvey both had rounds of 80 and 84. W. L. Hope, the former British Walker Cup player, partnered Miss Pam Barton (R. Mid-Surrey). Their aggregate was 171 (91 and 80), and Mrs. P. Hodson, the captain-manager of the British team, and Mr. Giles returned 185 (91 and 94).

as Vice-captain for the ensuing season.

U. S. BRIDGE WIN

ENGLISH PAIR IN ARREARS

DECIDING WHAT CARD TO LEAD

The first international contract bridge pairs match ever played was won at the Dorchester, Park Lane, W., by the American pair, Michael Gottlieb and Howard Schenken, who defeated the English players, H. Ingram and S. Hughes by 87 rubbers to 63 and by 41,120 points.

There was illustration of the sporting spirit in which the match has been played when Schenken, trying to make three no trumps, found that success or failure depended on whether he played the Queen or ten of clubs from dummy.

After deliberating for some time, he took a florin from his pocket, tossed it, and played the Queen. His proverbial good fortune did not desert him, for had he chosen the ten, Hughes's Jack would have made the trick and defeated the rubber contract.

Jack Allen, whose two goals against the Arsenal in the Cup Final of 1932 gave Newcastle United the F.A. Cup, has been transferred from Bristol Rovers to Gateshead.

Footballer-Cricketer's Dilemma

WHICH TO PLAY?

London, Sept. 4. Jack Arnold, the Hampshire cricketer and Fulham Football Club's international forward, had to make a dramatic choice yesterday between playing for his county against Yorkshire at Portsmouth to-day and turning out for his club against Hull City at Hull.

He failed to report to the Fulham manager in the train leaving King's Cross, for Hull, last night, and he may therefore be expected to play against the champion county at Portsmouth to-day.

Arnold, as cricketer and footballer.

Several Fulham officials waited anxiously until the last moment for Arnold to arrive.

Earlier a telegram—"Cannot release Arnold"—had been received from the Hampshire Cricket Club, but in spite of this Fulham hoped that Arnold would obey their instructions.

They have now decided, I understand, to take action against Arnold. "For the last two years, apparently, this problem has arisen," Mr. J. Peart, Fulham's new manager, said yesterday: "now it will cease for ever."

RAISING FUNDS FOR OLYMPICS

NOVEL AMERICAN IDEA

REFLECTORS FOR MOTORCARS

The American Olympic Committee has hit on a novel idea to help finance its expedition to the Olympic Games.

It is issuing reflectors which can be attached simply to the back of motor-cars and bicycles. This reflector is constructed on the same principle as the "cat's-eye" for bicycles but is considerably larger, having a diameter of 3½ inches.

It bears on its face a small replica of the official American Olympic emblem surrounded by the words: "American Olympic Fund, 1936."

The reflectors are sold for a dollar each, and are already to be seen on the cars of thousands of patriotic and sport-loving Americans.

Liverpool F.C. have secured the services of Van Vuuren, one of South Africa's best goalkeepers. Liverpool have been in negotiation for some weeks, despite a message from the Colony that he would not leave South Africa.

Day and went ahead to win comfortably by five lengths. Goldsmith and Mount Pilatus were outclassed.

BELMONT STAR'S WIN

I do not believe in blowing up any Jockey but I must certainly give Cosnar his due. Mr. Donald Black deserves great credit in winning the Junk Bay Handicap "D" Class (Second Section) with Belmont Star. It is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Black is now riding with good judgment of pace. In the race referred to, he adopted a waiting policy and won easily with plenty to spare. The capability of race ponies is in their energy and speed, the latter must not be over-rated or over-estimated. It is essential to reserve a little of the speed for its final rush. Lucky Strike (Mr. Dietz) took the lead from the start and maintained it till the last quarter, but when entering the straight the pony was not withstanding the very liberal use of the whip, all out, and Lucky Strike was very lucky to get a place.

JOCKEY'S DEBUT

Mr. Cheung made his first acquaintance with Judge Tester in the Clear Water Bay Handicap (Five Furlongs) through Illi West and supporters were rewarded with $44.70 for a win. What's The Time was fancied by the writer to win but nevertheless the pony was third and paid $14. The jockey, Mr. Ip Kum-in, is to be excused as it was his maiden ride in the race. The pony finished strong but the jockey was all out.

The first leg of the Daily Double was won by What A Chance in the Junk Bay Handicap "D" Class (First Section) and Mr. Pih had to ride hard to stave off Zero who was ridden by Mr. Ralph, an old timer, and it was his first place. In the "Pari" What A Chance paid $12.20 for a win and there were 223 chances on him for the Double.

Mr. Leo Frost, on Helman, rode one of the hardest races I have seen for a long time, in the main event Tweed Island Bay Handicap "B" Class over a mile but Macaroni, having a pull of 5 lbs. on the basis of Weight for Inches, managed to turn the table. At the fall of the flag, there was a rush from the barrier at full speed, the first quarter being done in 29.2/5th and the first half-a-mile in 68.4/5th seconds. With the exception of the first three placed ponies, namely, Macaroni, Helman and Rose Queen, the rest of the field finished almost crawling past the winning post. The pace was set by King's Bounty but Mr. Black, on Macaroni, was wise enough not to follow, and it was his sound judgment of pace that won the race. The time, 2.00.3/5th was a creditable performance for "B" Class ponies.

UPSET OF THE DAY

The weighing-out for the Island Bay Handicap "C" Class (First Section) was watched with much interest owing to the fact that this race was for the second leg of the Daily Double and there were 223 successful punters on the first leg which was won by What A Chance. As the names of the ponies appeared on the Telegraph Board, there were several groups of fans discussing the prospects and when Victoria Hall's name was last posted and brought the field up to 10 starters, the crowd dispersed to back their fancies. All the ponies walked to the Starting Post with the exception of Soldier of Peace (Mr. Dietz) who, being a slugger, was given a fast canter to warm up.

There was a little delay in the start but as soon as the barrier was released, it was noticeable that no one wanted to do the pace-making, as the view of the fact that Mr. Li Shun-pang had two runners (Soldier of Peace and Helman) and his brother Mr. L. T. F., also had two in High Speed and Victoria Hall. Although not the same owner, both Bistre and Bright Star were trained by Pang Yau, and Spinaway and Valorous are under the Russian trainer, Jack, who was formerly Mr. Johnnie Heard's No. 1 boy.

It was obvious that all went out to do their best to win. However, the field was bunching going up the Black Rock and the first half-a-mile was covered in 1.02.1/5th—an average of 31 seconds per two furlongs or per quarter. Coming down the incline near the 1 1/4 Miles Post, the field was bunching and at one time it seemed from a distance that a blanket could cover them. The rail-birds, especially those at the Public Stand, were getting very excited when the field started to spread out for the home run and from this point onward there was nothing else but shouts.

A THRILLING RACE

Without the slightest exaggeration all the ponies at the Distance Post were almost in a line fighting it out stride by stride, but after the Mile Post the most prominent ponies to be seen were (starting from the rails) Soldier of Peace, Monoplane, Bright Star, Spinaway and Bistre. Within 100 yards from home, the last two named started losing ground. It then left Soldier of Peace, Monoplane and Bright Star to fight the issue out and these were under hard pressure with the liberal use of the whips.

The three passed the Winning Post almost in a line after the most exciting finish I have ever seen and the Gentleman in charge of handing out the weights deserves a Top-Hat. No

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

Police & East Lancashire "A" In Drawn Game

In a friendly game of hockey at the Police Training School ground yesterday afternoon, the Police second eleven drew with the "A" Company, East Lancashire Regiment. There were no scores.

The wet conditions made the ground slippery, and conditions were on the whole far from good. Nevertheless, a keen game ensued.

one could tell the Winner except the Judges, who took sometime to deliberate.

In the meanwhile, the successful punters were impatiently waiting for the decision of the Judges, especially the supporters of Monoplane, there being only 41 backers to win and a solitary ticket for the Daily Double. When one of the Staff of "Tommy Atkins" put the addic numbers "7" (Soldier of Peace) and "5" (Monoplane) horizontally in the frame to be followed below with "2" (Bright Star) and under the frame with "Dead Heat" and "Short Head", the "two minutes silence" was broken but I assure readers that no unparliamentary language was used. In the "Pari" Soldier of Peace paid $23.90 and Monoplane $0.50 to win and in the Daily Double, the former returned $128 and the latter $1,152.80.

ANOTHER CLOSE FINISH

Another thrilling finish was seen in the penultimate event, The Vauluse Handicap over five furlongs for "Aussies" when Mr. Frost on Bob-nink Star won his second race, beating by a neck, Saucy Face who in turn accounted for Atlas by a length. I was very disappointed with Stream-line who finished a bad fourth. However, this pony will win a race before the fall.

Good old Racing Boy, a hot favourite, let the punters down very badly in the last race, the Island Bay Handicap "C" Class (Second Section) and if my memory serves, he finished second last in a field of eight starters. Mr. C. Reza, on Gold Coin, nearly lost the race to the stable companion, Great Hall, (Mr. Frost) by looking round, which (without prejudice) is one of his bad habits. He won by the narrow margin and paid $17.50.

NEW STEWARDS

I am pleased to learn of the appointment of Dr. J. C. Macgown and Mr. E. B. Reed as Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club for both of them take a lot of interest in racing, especially the former gentleman who has been a Steward of the Farling Hunt & Race Club since its inception. Owners are reminded that Entries for the Ninth Extra Race Meeting which is to be held on October 10 and 12 close on Monday, September 30 at noon, and that the conditions of the 8th race (Pukien Handicap—One mile) on Second Day to be ridden by novices, have been modified to include the "E" Class. The conditions now are for China Ponies, "E" Class and Subscription Grifflins of this Club of this Season that have not won a race at Race Meetings of this Club.

Who Will Captain Out Cricketers?

INTERPORT BOWLS FIXTURES

NEW FIXTURES DRAWN UP

RE-ARRANGEMENT NECESSARY

Owing to the revised decision of the Shanghai Interport Lawn bowls team to curtail their stay in the Colony and to arrive here on October 9 instead of on October 4, as originally intended, the Council of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association held a meeting at the Official Messengers' Office, St. George's Building last evening to rearrange the Interport programme which they fixed, two weeks ago.

Mr. H. Nish, the President of the Association, was in the chair, and it was decided that instead of each First Division Club meeting the visitors separately, the Clubs should each be represented by two players only. This means that two Clubs would combine to play Shanghai, each providing two players.

THE PROGRAMME

The rearranged programme is as follows:

Wednesday, Oct. 9.—Shanghai v. Police R.C. and Civil Service C.C. combined, on the Police green.

Thursday, Oct. 10.—Shanghai v. Hongkong, on Recreation green.

Friday, Oct. 11.—Shanghai v. Kowloon C.C. and Recreation combined, on K.C.C. green.

Saturday, Oct. 12.—Shanghai v. Hongkong, on Civil Service C.C. green.

Sunday, Oct. 13.—Shanghai v. Kowloon Bowling green and Kowloon Docks combined, on Kowloon Docks green.

Monday, Oct. 14.—Shanghai v. Second Division, on Tai Koo R.C. green.

Tuesday, Oct. 15.—Shanghai v. Indian R.C. and Craigengower C.C. combined, on Craigengower green.

Wednesday, Oct. 16.—Shanghai v. Hongkong, at Kowloon Bowling Green C.C. green.

Thursday, Oct. 17.—Shanghai v. Hongkong Football Club, Hongkong Electric R.C. and Yacht Club, combined on Hongkong Football Club green.

The Interport dinner will be held at the Kowloon Cricket Club on Wednesday, October 10, following the third Interport match.

Brantford F.C. have signed, as a professional, Samuel Bridson, a 19-years-old right half-back, from Deversal (Nottingham).

H. OWEN HUGHES WILL NOT BE HERE

A. W. HAYWARD AND G. S. DUNKLEY THE RIVAL CANDIDATES

NET PRACTICE STARTS IN EARNEST AT THE HONGKONG C. C.

(By R. Abbot)

The bad weather of the last day or two has checked the activities of the enthusiasts, though in some cases I dare say they will be glad of a stand-easy to let some of the stiffness work off! The Club have made a start with question is, are we to adopt the rule their nets, pitched on the East side of the ground. One very curious thing has happened since last season. The new Bank Building is going to make a lot of difference to the light on the Club Ground. How much I am not quite sure yet. On the face of it, it will improve matters for the bowlers when the nets are pitched on the West side of the ground, and very possibly it will be quite useful for the other side.

As regards a game in the middle, I am not sure whether things may not be a little awkward for a few minutes, as a long black shaft of shadow may be thrown with bright light on each side of it. And this will of course vary when the shorter days come along and the sun is lower in the sky. Not being an astronomer I don't know just how the thing will work, and not being a lawyer I cannot say if any question of ancient lights is involved! I consider it improbable, however, that the Committee of the Hongkong Cricket Club will serve a notice upon the Corporation to "take that bumble away" or words to that effect!

AT NETS

I had a look at the practice on Monday and found the wicket on the slow side and taking spin pretty freely. There were several of the most enthusiastic old hands there, and a good sprinkling of N.O.s, as well. One of them, a sub-mariner, I fear, looked more like a slow spin merchant with a definite wrong 'un in the bag than anything I have seen for a lot of seasons out here.

How many of our point of view cricketers to shore-going establishments. Speaking at random, Pay-Commander Hargreaves is about the only naval officer who has played for Hongkong in my time, so far as I can remember. In this connection I rather wonder what the Navy will be able to do about their side this season. The Fleet, if one may hazard a guess, may be even more far-flung than usual. I have no doubt, however, that they will raise a useful aid somehow. There was a fastish medium bowler who looked as if he might get a lot of wickets on a fast pitch with good slips, and I believe Lt. Com. Barry is managing their cricket.

THE INTERPORT

Practice for the Interport has not been started seriously yet, but one or two facts emerge. I now learn that H. Owen Hughes will not be returning to the Colony until December. If A. W. Hayward and G. S. Dunkley were in substance what has been adopted for trial in County Cricket during 1935. The Sub-Committee also considered various other changes. (Its constitution by the way is interesting as the late Lord Harris was chairman, and the members were J. W. H. T. Douglas, P. T. Eckersley, G. A. Faulkner, A. E. R. Gilligan, Nigel Hais, V. W. C. Jupp, R. H. Lyttelton, C. T. A. Wilkinson and W. A. Worsley.)

The definite proposal of Lyttelton's was turned down, and it was stated that the members agreed with the umpires that they must be guided by the pitch of the ball only. They did however, approve the change that a batsman could be l.b.w. after the straight ball and touched his legs or his person, and that the rule 24 should be amended accordingly and rule 27 also amended to prevent using "the hands" to prevent the ball rolling to the wicket after having been played. And here I find myself in a difficulty. I am morally certain that this change was tried, but as to whether it is still in force or not I really do not know; and I think you will find most local umpires also not quite clear in their minds as to what the present law on the subject. As in the 1935 Widen the rules are printed without the two amendments mentioned above I assume that the innovation was not a success and has been dropped. I should be glad to hear from any of my readers.

CHANGES IN THE LAWS

The change in the size of the stumps was adopted in Hongkong the season after it had proved to be a success in English cricket, although it was even there brought in only for County Cricket in the first instance. But its adoption by almost all clubs of any standing at home was immediate and Hongkong was with them. In the forthcoming season, ing that the size of the wicket should be increased and this, as everyone knows has become part of the game. They adopted this in preference to reducing the size of the bat, chiefly it seems because it would interfere less with the trade.

I hope to go into the recent changes more fully in a later article. I will conclude this one with the news which has just come to hand that the Selection Committee has been nominated, and that Messrs. R. H. B. Huncok, A. W. Hayward and G. S. Dunkley will serve. I sincerely hope that they "have power to add to their number." At least one if not two members of Clubs other than the Hongkong Cricket Club should be available for consultation—or so, the majority of cricket opinion in the Colony runs, unless I am much mistaken.

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XXXVI

Neither of them moved. The dim light from the open window fell on Janet and made her white dress seem whiter. Her face was indistinct, half in shadow.

"Janet!" Rolf said, moving forward. And that was all. "I didn't hear you," she told him, and her voice, naturally low-pitched, had a touch of huskiness. She hurried on, as though it were important to keep on speaking. "It's dark in here, isn't it? I don't know why the lights haven't been put on. Everyone seems to be gone."

"I came to meet Betty," Rolf explained. "If she's not here she will be soon. Janet—I've never seen you looking so lovely." He was almost beside her now. "There's something about you tonight. What is it?"

"You look beautiful!"

Buster, the cat, squirmed uneasily in her arms and Janet bent to put him down. "Thank you for the compliment!" she said, looking up again at Rolf, and managed to say the words lightly. She moved to the table, touched the lamp and the room was bathed in a warm, amber glow. "There! That's better."

Rolf followed. "Please don't go!" he urged. "Stay here and talk to me. I've been wanting to ask how things are going with you. Is everything all right?"

"That's not what I mean. I mean—really!"

His sleeve brushed her arm and Janet stepped away. Then she saw his eyes directly. "Everything is perfectly all right," she said. "I'm—I'm happy!"

"I don't know whether you are or not," Rolf began. "I don't know—"

There was the sound of footsteps, and the doors broke off. Both Janet and Rolf turned. Betty Carlyle stood in the doorway. She was wearing a sheer yellow gown that fitted her snugly and then fell in huge, swirling folds to her feet. A rather daring gown, and a daring little yellow hat perched sideways on her dark hair. She would have arrested attention anywhere but in that room her appearance was electric.

"Well!" Betty exclaimed. "What a charming scene! I hope I'm not intruding!"

There could be no doubt of the anger in her voice. She smiled but it was the silky smile that conceals a thrust-to-me.

"Not at all!" Rolf told her coolly. "Late, aren't you? I thought you'd be here when I came."

"Yes, I'm late. And how kind it's been of Miss Hill to entertain you. You didn't by any chance come early, did you?"

"Betty, don't talk nonsense!"

She came into the room then, walking slowly. She came until she stood half-way between them. Looking directly at Rolf she said, "I will talk whatever and wherever I like and I don't think you'll try to stop me. Oh, no, I wouldn't try to do that!"

Suddenly Betty's mood seemed to change. She said, "Oh, come along, Rolf. We were due at the Jamiesons' half an hour ago." She put a hand on his arm as though to indicate that a truce had been established.

"Turning to Janet she said, 'Tell me, mother we were here, will you? I'll call her sometime to-morrow.'"

A moment more and they were gone. Janet walked to the window and looked out. Completely dark outside except for lights in the windows of the house next door. She turned again toward the room. What an attractive room and what a hideous scene to have taken place there!

As though to get away from it, Janet fled up the stairs to her bedroom. She closed the door behind her and sank into the big chair. What was to happen now? Did she really suspect Janet and Rolf were interested in each other?

They were all questions without an answer. What would Betty say for a test? Did she really suspect Janet and Rolf were interested in each other?

"I won't worry," Janet told herself firmly. "There's nothing to worry about because nothing happened."

She arose then and faced herself in the mirror. It was true. Nothing had happened, but how perilously narrow was the margin! It was good thing Betty had come even though she had misunderstood the situation. Five minutes more—alone with Rolf and Janet knew she could not have trusted herself. She did not quite trust herself now.

She moved about the room nervously, picked up a magazine and put it down. There was nothing to which she could settle down. Finally she undressed and hung away the white gown. She filled the tub with water, bathed and, though it was still early, turned out the light and slipped into bed.

If Betty ever mentioned the scene in the library to her mother, Mrs. Curtis did not speak of it. Preparations for the trip to Silver Bay went on next morning just as they had before. The only difference was that now Janet was eager to get away. She had thought little about the trip; now she looked forward to it. Her confidence had been shaken and the summer resort seemed a refuge.

Wednesday morning they were to depart. Tuesday was a day of feverish activity with packing to be completed. At last minute errands, interrupted by the telephone and by the doorbell, friends calling to see Mrs. Curtis, and Mrs. Curtis changing her mind about this and that.

Janet was never quite able to understand why so many details that would have been arranged simply anywhere else became immensely complicated in this household. Try as she would, she could not seem to plan otherwise. Mrs. Curtis would refuse to make up her mind until the last minute—or she would make it up early and then change it.

It was with relief that Janet saw locks fastened and keys turned in the baggage Wednesday morning. It was with keen relief, too, that she followed Mrs. Curtis from the house to the waiting limousine. Frederick would drive them to the station, bring the car back and store it, and then set off on his own vacation.

"You're sure, Janet, that you haven't asked anything?" Mrs. Curtis asked anxiously as the motor car drew away. "You're sure you have the tickets?"

"I have them," Janet assured her. And she had. They were safely tucked away in the purse under her arm.

"Well, I hope so," Mrs. Curtis had the worried air of the habitually inefficient.

They arrived at the station and Janet checked over the baggage. All there. She turned to see a bright red jacket making toward them. It was Betty, looking unusually gay and vivacious.

"Thought I'd surprise you. Mother, by dropping around to say good-bye! How much time have you? Oh, that's the car. Well—come on!"

Betty seemed in the best of spirits. Janet heard her say that Rolf was to meet her for lunch. Betty chattered until the brokenman's warning, "All aboard!" A quick kiss then and she was gone.

Mrs. Curtis smiled. "Sweet of her to come, wasn't it?"

Janet said, "Yes, it was." Through the window she saw the red jacket hurrying toward a young man. But it was not Rolf. The young man was Van Bannister and he was standing beside a slate-colored roadster.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

If you can picture the monster of "Frankenstein" and the vampire of "Dracula" vying with each other for horror honours, you can anticipate the chills and thrills that are packed into Universal's "The Raven," opening at the King's theatre on Sunday. Suggested by Edgar Allan Poe's immortal classic, this film boasts the combined master talents of Karlhoff (Frankenstein) and Bela Lugosi (Dracula). These two chills are co-starred in a story adapted to the screen by David Boehm and featuring in the supporting cast Irene Ware, Lester Matthews, Samuel Hinds, Inez Courtney and many others. Praught with danger and mysticism, "The Raven" abounds with intense suspense from beginning to end. It is indeed a worthy successor to "Frankenstein" and "Dracula."

"Gold Diggers of 1935"

Gold digging has been a popular sport throughout the history of mankind and womanhood. The technique has changed from time to time but the general idea of making the men pay and pay is the same. The daughters of Pharaohs had their own system when Greece was young. They simply sat on a mythological rock and sang ditties. Cleopatra reclined on a large and looked coy. Pompeiour waved a fan and dropped her heavy-lidded eyes. The gold-digging sirens of modern times have used every weapon from short skirts to bathing suits and while there is little subtlety in their method, they manage to get results. "Gold Diggers of 1935," the first National Production commencing this Saturday at the Queen's Theatre, introduces another idea into gold digging. There is a woman in it who does the paying, while the gold digging is done by three men. Of course, there are other minor operations such as a public stenographer cheating a husband out of a few thousand dollars, but the major enterprise is planned and executed by the men at the expense of a woman. "Gold Diggers of 1935" stars Dick Powell with Gloria Stuart, Adolphe Menjou, Hugh Hopper, Frank McHugh, Alice Brady, Grant Mitchell, Glenda Farrell, Winifred Shaw, Dorothy Dare and Ramon Novila, the team dancers.

"Silk Hat Kid"

There must be a reason for it, when an unknown girl is chosen from among

300 amateur chorines for a New York stage engagement. Brown-eyed Mae Clarke, now teamed with Lew Ayres in Fox Film's "Silk Hat Kid," which is now at the Alhambra, justified the choice that led her to film fame. One of "Dawson's Dancing Dolls" at the Steeplechase Pier in Atlantic City, when Earl Lindsay visited his ex-partner, May Dawson, and assessed a performance of her 300 pupils, Miss Clarke was chosen from the ranks of the dancers for an appearance with the Lindsay Revue on the Strand roof. Subsequent seasons at the Everglades and other exclusive New York night clubs led to her dancing role in "Gay Paree," which she followed with a straight dramatic role in "The Noose." The versatile actress-dancer-orch singer was given the leading dancing role in "Manhattan Mary" before she was paired with Lew Ayres in Fox Film's "Silk Hat Kid." Miss Clarke plays a straight sympathetic role and enjoys portraying just "A regular girl."

"Myra" in "Narcissus Bridge" and "Gale" in "Wanted" were unforgettable performances more recently followed by the led in "The Darling Young Man" opposite James Dunn. Paul Kelly and William Harrison also play featured roles in "Silk Hat Kid," which was directed by Bruce Humberstone.

"Romance in Manhattan"

A thrilling love story that throbs in unison with the pulsating tempo of New York, drama that is rich in human interest and emotional appeal, living realities under the magic touch of genius—these are the ingredients that have been combined to make the RKO-Radio's "Romance of Manhattan" now at the Star Theatre, one of the most promising lines of the current stage and screen favourite, is co-starring with Ginger Rogers in this poignant story of a friendless, penniless immigrant boy who looks toward America as the Promised Land, and happiness brings him into a series of gripping episodes in the sub-stratum of the metropolis. Cast as the famous "Continental" and exponent of a light-hearted chorus girl whose generosity far exceeds the scope of her meagre earnings. Others in the cast include such outstanding performers as J. Farrell, MacDonald, Shirley Grey.

popular boy actor. Adapted from an original story by Norman Krassa and Don Hartman, the screen play was written by Edward Kaufman and Jane Murnin. Because of his special skill Stephen Roberts was assigned to the task of directing the picture. This production, Francis Lederer brings to the screen the dash and heart-gripping appeal that has made him the idol of the American and European stage, and in the character of the immigrant boy he has his greatest opportunity to sway audiences to laughter or tears.

"Laddie"

Out of one of the world's most popular novels, the producers of "Little Women" have wrought another marvellous screen play "Laddie" so glowing with life and romance and drama, so filled with vital warmth and charm, that it ranks with the sound cinema's best. Showing at the King's Theatre to-day, "Laddie" holds its audience enthralled through its length. Perfect balance is the keynote of the picture, which translates to life, the world famous story that Mrs. Stratton-Porter penned, and which is said to have had 40,000,000 readers. For the title role there is John Beal, who repeats the success he won opposite Katharine Hepburn in "The Little Minister." For heroine there is Gloria Stuart, acting the "Princess" role, lending grace and beauty and high histrionic ability to one of the most famous feminine characters in all fiction. Gloria Stuart in the role of Sally, Laddie's sister, also reveals herself a finished actress. And weaving a wondrous thread of tenderness throughout the photoplay, there is the work of little Virginia Weiler as "Little Sister."

"His Greatest Gamble"

How a father and daughter who are incarcerated in individual cells of society offer each other release is dramatically unveiled in "His Greatest Gamble," RKO-Radio picture, opening to-day at the Queen's Theatre. According to Salisbury Field's original screen story, the father is imprisoned in a goal cell for intentionally killing a woman. The daughter is a debutante who is moulded to a perfunctory, artificial existence by her socialite mother. Even her hope of a wholesome romance is menaced by her mother. The situation reaches the father in the dark cell and inspires him to escape. He comes to his daughter's rescue arousing her true spirit and own mind in a gripping climax. Dix as the father and Dorothy Wilson as the daughter are central characters in "His Greatest Gamble" in which John Robertson also directed Bruce Cabot, Erin O'Brien-Moore, Edith Fellows and Shirley Grey.

VERSIONS DIFFER

MAGISTRATE'S COMMENT ON MONKEY WORK

Lam Li-lam, aged 35, earth cooler, of Kowloon City, appeared on remand before Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Police Court yesterday afternoon on a charge of assaulting Fong Tim, also an earth cooler, on September 18.

The defendant was discharged after evidence by the complainant and another witness, the magistrate remarking there had been some "monkey work" in the meantime.

Inspector Chester-Woods appeared for the prosecution. Fong Tim testified that on the night in question he was called out of his house, 96 Sheung Sha Po Road, by a man named Po Ying. When he went outside witness was assaulted by three men. Witness did not know who assaulted him as it was so dark that he could scarcely see the faces. He was struck in the back with a hammer and was rendered unconscious. Later he was removed to the Kowloon Hospital. Witness could not say whether the defendant was present at the assault or not.

Witness added he used to live on the same floor with defendant and owed him two months' rent. He denied knowing the defendant's wife or sister.

Defendant's Version

Defendant stated that complainant had a quarrel with another man, Kit Ying, some time ago when Kit Ying attempted to strike complainant, but he (defendant) prevented it. On the night of September 18 it was Kit Ying and Po Ying and not the defendant who assaulted complainant.

The next witness, Lam Fuk, principal tenant, deposed that he heard a noise and on going out saw three men running away. He blew his police whistle. He did not see the assault.

Inspector Chester-Woods remarked that Lam Fuk, at the police station, was definite that defendant struck complainant with a hammer and went so far as to demonstrate it.

His Worship: There has been some monkey work in the meantime.

It was stated at the previous hearing on Saturday that according to defendant, the complainant had been paying attention to defendant's sister and other women. Defendant resented this.

It was then alleged by complainant that defendant and two other men took him to a dark place where they "beat him up" with sticks.

FOUND WITH FIREARM

MAN ARRESTED NEAR THE CENTRAL MARKET

Charged with the unlawful possession of a loaded revolver, Yip Sau, unemployed, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon. Inspector Andrew, prosecuting, stated that the defendant was arrested by two detective district watchmen at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of last Saturday, in Des Voeux Road Central, near the market.

The district watchmen testified that they had seen the accused acting suspiciously, and he seemed to be nervous about something. One of them thereupon approached the man and tried to search him. The defendant, who had raised his hands on the detective's orders, lowered them again when the D.W. placed his hands on his waist, and tried to push them away. On seeing this, the other detective took hold of the prisoner's arms from behind and held them, while his companion continued his search and found the revolver. The prisoner was handed over to Inspector Andrew, together with the weapon and cartridges.

Waiting for Another Man

The Inspector, giving evidence, stated that defendant had declared he had been given the revolver by a man in Yau-mat, who had promised him $5 to take it to 19 Ta Yuen Street in Wan-chai. The man's name was Chun Sau. The Inspector had given the accused three separate and distinct chances to find Chun Sau, but the people living at the address denied all knowledge of both defendant and the other man.

Acting Sergeant Scott, the armourer at the Central Police Station, said that the revolver in question was a .45 calibre Bulldog of Belgian manufacture, and though rusty, could be used. The cartridges, four in number, were made from cut down rifle cartridges, and were quite serviceable. The prisoner, when asked if he wanted to say anything, corroborated the Inspector's testimony, adding that Chun Sau had told him to wait near the Central Market for him, but as he did not appear, he had decided to go to his house when he was arrested. He was committed for trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

LEAGUE STANDS FIRM

UNANIMOUS VOTE OF COUNCIL

Geneva, Sept. 26. At the secret meeting of the Council which preceded the public meeting it was decided to establish a Committee consisting of all members of the Council, except Italy, to report on the dispute between Italy and Ethiopia, but at the same time to maintain the Committee of Five in order that its conciliatory efforts be continued under Paragraph 3, of Article XV of the Covenant.

Baron Aloisi was not present at the secret meeting. It is understood that at this meeting the Soviet, Rumanian and Turkish delegates, while supporting the Council's proposals, made reservations with regard to the acceptance of the report of the Committee of Five on the ground that the concessions offered to Italy are so great as not to conform with the Covenant of the League.—Reuter.

Italy Defied

Geneva, Sept. 26. The League Council defying Italy's wrath, has decided to invoke the Covenant.

Representatives of the thirteen nations represented on the Council have decided that action shall be taken under paragraphs three and four, of article XV, leading to penalties.

Italy was not represented at the meeting.

The decision risks the life of the League to preserve peace and protect its members.—United Press.

Unanimous Decision

Geneva, Sept. 26. The Council unanimously adopted the proposal to continue work under Clause 4 of Article XV, and prepare a report and make recommendations.

The Council will form itself into a Committee, consisting of all members, except Italy, to proceed with this work.—Reuter.

Council to Report

Geneva, Sept. 26. At the outset of the Council meeting, Senor Madariaga, as President of the Committee of Five, submitted the Committee's report.

M. Tekle Hawariat, a non-member of the Council, attended by invitation, and said that the Ethiopian delegates would like to reserve the right to consult their Government, which would give the most careful examination to any Council proposals.

The President of the Council, Senor Guinazu, of Argentina, then announced that Article XV had been in operation since September 4, when the Council first met. The next stage was for the Council, sitting as a Committee, to draft a report under Clause four of Article XV.

Senor Guinazu proposed that the session should not close until the report had been adopted.

Mr. Eden endorsed Senor Guinazu's proposal and said that while the Committee of Thirteen were drafting their report the Governments would have the opportunity, within the terms of the Covenant, of considering if the attainment of peace were possible to achieve.

Britain's policy had recently been authoritatively declared and Britain was strenuously determined to abide thereto.

M. Laval supported Mr. Eden and said that France would adhere to the Covenant obligations, and the Council in formulating its recommendations would accomplish the task in the spirit and the letter of the Covenant.

M. Litvinoff reiterated the Soviet support to any Council decision. Dr. Muench also welcomed the proposal as safeguarding League principles.

The proposal was then passed unanimously. Baron Aloisi did not attend the meeting.

The Council Committee which will hold its first sitting to-morrow consists of France, Britain, Soviet, Russia, Argentina, Spain, Australia, Turkey, Rumania, Poland, Portugal, Denmark, Ecuador and Chile.

The Committee of Five remains in being.—Reuter.

Mr. Eden's Appeal

London, Sept. 26. When the public session of the Council opened all states who are members of the Council, with exception of Italy, were represented. It is understood the Italian delegates' absence was due to Italy's refusal to sit at the Council table when Abyssinia is given that privilege.

The Abyssinian delegate, Monsieur Tekle Hawariat was accompanied by Professor Jaze, legal adviser, for Abyssinia.

Senor Guinazu, President of the Council, proposed that the Committee of Five should remain in being in order to be ready to make suggestions at any time they were called upon to do so. He urged that all efforts at conciliation should be continued. "These two parties are now known. Therefore I propose that the Council should take immediate steps to draft its

ECONOMIC EXPERT

SIR FREDERICK MEETS SHANGHAI BANKERS

Shanghai, Sept. 26. Sir Frederick Leth-Briss, chief economic adviser of the British Government, and Sir Alexander Cadogan, British Ambassador, accompanied by the private secretary of Mr. H. H. Kung (the Nanking Finance Minister) returned here from Nanking yesterday morning.

Mr. Kung will entertain the British expert and Sir Alexander at a banquet in which scores of prominent Chinese financiers, bankers and merchants will be introduced to Sir Frederick to-night.

It is learned on good authority that as Sir Frederick has not started his investigations into China's economic and financial conditions he had no concrete discussion with the Chinese officials during his brief visit to Nanking.

The British expert intends to visit the Mayor, Mr. Wu Te-chen, this morning. At noon he will be entertained by the British Consul-General in Shanghai, Sir John Brennan, K.C.M.G.

report under Article XV, Paragraph Four, of the Covenant. The Council, sitting as a Committee, without of course the Italian delegate, should be entrusted with that task.

British Policy

Mr. Eden expressed regret that despite the sincerity of the efforts made no solution had been reached. He recalled that on September 4 he expressed the view that the machinery of the League should be brought into use, and he now suggested that Article XV paragraph Four should now be employed as a means of solving the problem.

"This is the task upon which we must engage with all seriousness and attention which it is possible to command, but also without undue delay. This procedure has the further advantage to which our President has very properly drawn attention: so long as the Council is engaged in drawing up its report and recommendations the work of conciliation can continue, and clearly no opportunity for such conciliation within the terms of the covenant should be missed. While the work of drafting the report is progressing the Governments will have opportunity to consider whether, and if so how, anything further can be done, to safeguard peace. This is an obligation, which as members of the League, we should not overlook. I will end with one word upon the wider issues of the dispute. The policy of His Majesty's Government in this respect has been recently and authoritatively declared. I need therefore only add that by that policy His Majesty's Government are strenuously determined to abide."

France and Russia

Monsieur Laval supported Mr. Eden.

He said: "France will adhere to the obligations of the Covenant. The Council will now abide by the Covenant and formulate its recommendations. I also agree on that point with the representative of Britain. The Council will accomplish this task in the spirit and in the letter of the covenant, and will, I am sure, after having reviewed the circumstances of the dispute, indicate measures which it will judge most equitable."

M. Litvinoff said there could be no doubt as to the measures the Soviet Government would take when the time came to safeguard peace in Africa, and in other parts of the world.

Doctor Munch (Denmark), in supporting the previous speakers, said he was convinced the Council would know how to indicate the best means of maintaining peace as well as the principles of the League of Nations.

The President announced, before the Council adjourned, that the proposals had been adopted unanimously.—British Wireless.

Sir A. Chamberlain's View

London, Sept. 26. Sir Austen Chamberlain in a statement to the London correspondent of the Paris Figaro last night said: "I remain convinced that intimate and continuous collaboration between Great Britain and France at Geneva can still prevent war. The League of Nations will either emerge from this trial triumphant, or irrevocably weakened. By the resolute action of all its members it can create a precedent which will bring about similar action on another occasion, if danger of aggression appears in Europe."

"Britain is not acting out of self-interest. Fidelity to the Covenant is the cause of her action. The strength of the attachment to the League shown by public opinion in England has surprised even its leaders. 'If Britain refuses to increase her commitments, she rests faithful to those she has already undertaken. She wonders only whether other nations are prepared to do as much, because Britain will not and cannot act alone.'—British Wireless.

Film Stars Still Twinkle After Quarter Of Century

"NEVER SAY DIE" ARTISTS OF SCREEN
Film fans, choking with emotion, frequently read harrowing tales of stars who twinkle for a while in the Hollywood firmament and then sink into dire poverty and obscurity.

But fact is stranger (and more reliable) than sob fiction, for there are no fewer than fifty-seven out-standing favourites of twenty years ago who are still earning from U.S. $1,000 to U.S. $5,000 weekly.

On analysis, it appears that the men whose popularity has endured outnumber the women by three to one.

Listen to these for a glittering constellation, still high in the heavens—Charlie Chaplin, Lionel Barrymore, George Arliss, Richard Dix, Warner Baxter and Tom Mix.

Enchantresses Still

And what about Richard Barthelmess, John Gilbert, Ralph Graves, Rod La Rocque, Conrad Nagel and Ben Lyon, all leads around 1918, who still play their love scenes with the old-time pep and passion?

Among the women, Mary Pickford, though inactive for the past two years, is by no means a "has-been," while Evelyn Brent, Marion Davies, Lila Lee and Gloria Swanson still enchant their male fans, after seventeen years of stardom.

All of these players (as Variety, the American theatre newspaper points out) manage to refute the contention that the life of a picture favourite is of short duration.

In some cases these stars have held a prominent position for as long as a quarter of a century. Which proves that the public taste is not always fickle.

WHEN A FARMER THRASHED THE KING

THE KING SAID
"I DESERVED
IT, TOO"

Johannesburg, Sept. 10.
A STORY of how an old Dutch farmer once saved the King from serious injury and thrashed him with a whip—is told by a correspondent to a Johannesburg newspaper.

The farmer arranged a shooting trip for naval cadets from the Cape. The cadets included the King, then fourteen-year-old Prince George, and his brother the Duke of Clarence.

The party set off in a mule wagon, and the farmer gave instructions that nobody should shoot without his permission.

The Prince Fell Off
Suddenly a buck appeared, and Prince George, forgetting what the farmer had said, fired.

The mules jumped, the wagon jolted, and the boy Prince fell off. The farmer just managed to turn the wagon aside so that the back wheel missed the Prince.

Then, beside himself with anger the old man advanced on the sprawling boy and struck him with his whip.

The hunt continued, and the incident was forgotten in the excitement of a good day's shooting.

Years later Prince George, then Prince of Wales, visited South Africa again. He gave a luncheon to the old farmer and introduced him to the Princess of Wales (Queen Mary) as "the only man who ever thrashed a British Prince."

"And," said the Prince, "a better and more deserved spanking no king's son ever had."

VINDICATION— AFTER 15 YEARS

HOW ENGLISH TYPIST
SAVED HER LOVER

London, Sept. 15.

AFTER 15 years, an English woman who followed her French sweetheart to the dreaded Devil's Isle penal settlement, has been instrumental in securing his vindication.

Fifteen years ago Henri Laquade was condemned to death for murder, and the sentence was only commuted to one of transportation for life after much agitation.

At the trial Miss Emily Hawke, a typist with a British mineral water firm in France, swore that at the time of the murder Laquade was with her, but the police denied this.

Later, however, she obtained permission to undertake nursing in the hospitals of the island of Saint Laurent du Maroni, one of the penal settlements.

Among the prisoners on the island was one named David Legros, who was afflicted with a form of leprosy.

No nurse could be found for him until Miss Hawke volunteered.

Then, as he lay dying, he confessed, in the presence of Miss Hawke and a priest, to having shot a man in Paris and allowed an innocent man to take the blame.

As his story unfolded, Miss Hawke suddenly realised that this dying convict was the perpetrator of the crime for which her sweetheart had been wrongfully sentenced.

For Eleven Months WHY RANSOM HAS NOT BEEN PAID TO BANDITS

£70,000 Before
Two Men Will Be Released

Anxious Wait
For Parents In England

Manchester, Sept. 20.

IN their home in King's-Road, Chorltoncum-Hardy, Manchester, a father and mother are counting the days that will bring to an end their ten months' wait for news of their kidnapped son.

Since last October Mr. Rudolph Bosshardt, a missionary, and his companion, Mr. A. Hayman, a New Zealander, have been held captive by Chinese bandits.

Within a few days now Mr. and Mrs. Bosshardt will know whether their son is safe or—dead.

For the sake of other Europeans in China it was thought inadvisable to satisfy the fantastic demand of £70,000 ransom plus anti-aircraft guns.

Last November Mr. H. Becker, another missionary, set out on the dangerous task of negotiating with the bandits—without adequate funds.

He took his life in his hands. He found the bandits after a long search.

This week the headquarters of the China Inland Mission in London received this telegram from Shanghai:—

"Have received telegram from Becker. Situation is very critical."

"Darkness Before Dawn"

The telegram can only have one meaning, but Mr. and Mrs. Bosshardt refuse to lose hope.

"My husband and I are praying that Mr. Becker may be successful," Mrs. Bosshardt said to me.

"We believe that the 'critical stage' that has just been reached is the darkness before the dawn."

Prayers have been offered in Manchester mission halls for the safety of the captives.

Miss Grace Emblem, a woman missionary, and the wives of the two men were also captured. Mrs. Bosshardt and Mrs. Hayman escaped, and Miss Emblem was released later.

Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of the United States naval officer in the Honolulu honour-slaying trial, has disappeared from the fashionable Washington circles in which she used to move and is living a Bohemian life in the art colony at Carmel, California, writing her memoirs.

Mrs. Massie was attacked by natives in Honolulu in 1932. One native was killed. Lieutenant Massie and Mrs. Portecene, his mother-in-law, accused of his manslaughter, were sentenced to ten years' later pardon. Mrs. Massie won divorce at Reno last year.

NEW CONTENDOR FOR STORK DERBY

Toronto, Sept. 15.

A NEW contender in the Canadian "Stork Derby" for a £100,000 prize appeared to-day.

Mrs. John Nagle gave birth to her tenth child since 1926, the year when Mr. Charles Vance Millar, eccentric lawyer, left £100,000 to the Toronto mother who in ten years bore the most children.

She claims leadership in the race with Mrs. Matthew Kenny, who has had thirteen children since 1926, alleging that Mrs. Kenny has registered only ten of her children, and only registered births count in the contest.

Mrs. Nagle's claim is likely to be short-lived, however. Mrs. Kenny is expecting her fourteenth child.

Another competitor is Mrs. Grace Bagnato, who states that eight of her twenty-two children have been born since Mr. Millar died.

A close-up picture of the terribly damaged bows of the German steamer Eisenach, which was towed stern first into Dover Harbour after colliding with H.M.S. Ramillies in a Channel gale. A stern battle with the elements was waged to prevent the Eisenach running on to the Goodwins before tugs could arrive to tow her into harbour. Hundreds of holiday-makers watched the crippled steamer arrive at Dover. The crew's damaged quarters were exposed to view by the great rent in the bows.

A fourth German sailor was lost.

ABYSSINIA'S ALLY IN WAR WITH ITALY

WILD, STEAMING DISEASE RIDDEN LOWLANDS

London, Sept. 20.

ITALY intends to attack Ethiopia on two fronts during the first week in October and will be prepared for a four year campaign, according to expert Military opinion.

Italy will have the finest military equipment ever used in war. Ethiopia will have in its favour its formidable barriers and its wild, steaming, disease ridden lowlands.

Information in the hands of the British military intelligence is that Italian military leaders themselves believe it will take four years to conquer the country completely. That it can be conquered, there seems no doubt—but at a great cost in blood and money.

Whatever the outcome of war, British experts are now convinced that the Italians will launch their big scale military offensive during the first week of October.

The estimate of the time is reached by the experts on the conviction that the Italian will wait for between two and three weeks after the rains—which started full force in June—have begun to subside.

It is little known, incidentally, that another rainy season starts on the low Danakil plain bordering Southern Eritrea in October, and that these rains spread slowly into the interior as far as Addis Ababa.

The Italians are expected to attack almost simultaneously from Eritrea, their northern colony, southward toward Addis Ababa, and from Somaliland, west-north-westward toward Addis Ababa.

In order to wipe out the bitter memory of their defeat at Adowa when Ethiopian warriors cut to pieces an Italian expeditionary force, killed or wounded 7,600 men and captured from 2,500 to 3,000 it is believed that one of the first Italian objectives will be Adowa, near the Eritrean frontier.

With airplanes, tanks and motorised artillery co-operating with infantry, the Italians are expected to strike southward from the region between Asmara, Eritrean capital, and Agordat. It was thought that a flanking column might advance southward from the neighbourhood of the Gulf of Zula.

In their advance from the Asmara front toward Adowa the Italians will be confronted by the first great natural barrier of Ethiopia—a gorge approximately 2,500 feet deep which would be a grave obstacle until roads could be built.

According to British military observers the roads could be built only in full view of the Ethiopian outpost sharpshooters.

The Northern front battle line of the Ethiopians was expected, because of the nature of the terrain, to extend roughly from Asmara, through the Adowa region, and eastward to Adigrat, paralleling the Eritrean frontier and some 25 miles south of it.

Should the Italians advance from Somaliland, their southern colony, as they are expected to, obstacles even greater than in the north would face them.

The climate in the south is worse, the rivers feed vast swamps where fevers are bred, water supplies are lacking, broad areas are covered with thorns and jungle like brush through which an army could only with enormous difficulty hack its path. Even mechanized units would be severely impeded.

The few wells in the region are dangerous, their mineralized water having a laxative effect. Moreover they are used by camels and sheep and man, containing sulphurated hydrogen, are perilous alike for man and beast.

British authorities believe that the Italians may attempt to conduct their campaign by building a railway into Ethiopia from the south. Realisation of such an effort would require, under favourable circumstances at least two years, it is estimated. But once accom-

NOTED CHINESE
PASSESFORMER CANTON
OFFICIAL

News has just been received of the death in Shanghai of Mr. Wing Chi Anyang, a well-known business-man and father of General Anyang Ku, former Commissioner of Police in Canton.

The late Mr. Anyang passed away on September 24 after a brief illness.

Born in 1869 at Margee, Chungshan, he went to America at an early age. He returned to China at the age of 21, and established himself as a tea merchant in Hankow. In 1890, he owned and operated the first modern iron and steel foundry in Hankow, near Hankow. A few years later, his services were sought by the Chinese Government to promote the Hankow-Canton Railway and also the Kiangsi-Nanchang Railway in Kiangsi.

In 1900, he joined the Government at Canton as Treasurer of Kwangtung Province. After the revolution, he became Chairman of the Board of Directors of the China Merchants Steam Navigation Co. He retired from business a few years ago and resided both in Shanghai and Hongkong.

The late Mr. Anyang is survived by his wife, three sons, Mr. Anyang Kui, former chief of Police in Canton and now at Army headquarters, Hankow; Mr. Man Lee, city treasurer at Shanghai; and Mr. Man Wah, at present studying in Hongkong, and three daughters, Mrs. Warren A. Wong; Grace; and Pui King.

The remains will be brought back to Chungshan for interment. The date for the funeral will be announced later.

Mr. P. Grosse, driver of private car No. 3504, has reported that while driving in Hennessy Road a little after midnight he knocked down a Chinese, whose name is not known. The man received severe head injuries, and was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital. Mr. W. C. F. Jenner, driver of private car No. 2774, reports that while driving in Queen's Road East, yesterday, he knocked down a man, Tam Pui, aged 55 years, who ran in front of the car. The man received slight injuries, and was not detained on being sent to the Government Civil Hospital.

GOLD CLAUSE PAYMENT

Washington, Sept. 26. The Treasury has offered to pay the face value in devalued dollars at any time prior to January 1, 1936, for the surrender of nearly $8,000,000,000 in United States gold obligations. This authority was contained in a Congressional resolution forbidding gold clause suits against the Government after six months and permitting cashing prior to maturity.—United Press.

BONUS PAYMENT URGED

St. Louis, Sept. 26. FRIENDLY WARNING
TO ITALY

speaking at a luncheon in the City to-day. "The whole country, indeed, the whole Empire is, I believe, ready to support the Government in making a contribution to the authority of the League of Nations, in accordance with the obligations into which we have entered. We also support the Government in making it quite clear that there is no question of single action by Great Britain."

He continued:—"We in this country are sorry there has been an angry campaign against us in the Italian press and are very glad our own newspapers have made no rejoinder. The issue does not lie between Italy and Great Britain. It lies between Italy and the League of Nations."

Speaking as a "proved friend of Italy," Mr. Churchill said he was surprised that so great a man and so wise a ruler as Mussolini should be willing to put his gallant nation into such an uncomfortable military and financial position. He deplored more than he could say the course which seemed to remove the Italian comrades and the old Allies from the group of Great Powers which was striving to rebuild the harmony of the European family, in which the grandeur of a revived Italy played so great a part.

Mr. Churchill went on to describe the measure of rearmament undertaken by Germany and made a strong appeal for the strengthening of British defences, especially air forces. He regarded the Navy as fully competent to discharge any duty which might be required of it this year or next year, but the future must be provided for.—British Wireless.

FINE SALVAGE FEAT
COMPLETEDBATAVIA MARU ARRIVES IN TOW OF YUSHO MARU

Another venture of an already famous Japanese salvage expert ended successfully yesterday when Captain G. Miyazaki, superintendent of the salvage steamer Yusho Maru, arrived in Hongkong with his ship towing the O.S.K. steamer Batavia Maru.

The Batavia Maru went aground in the Gulf of Siam over two months ago and was finally given up by her owners, the O.S.K. line, as a total loss. A Japanese insurance Co., however, after negotiations with the Nippon Salvage Co., sent the Yusho Maru with a crew of about 70 under Captain Miyazaki to see what could be done.

Despite adverse weather conditions which prevailed almost throughout the trip the salvage venture proved successful, and yesterday the Yusho Maru arrived in Hongkong with her prize in tow.

After a month of extremely hard work refloating the Batavia Maru from the reef of rock on which she was firmly embedded, the salvagers were still in danger of losing the ship on account of the typhoon which passed through the Gulf of Siam.

Both ships were taken to Saigon and waited there for five days until the worst of the wind had passed over them then set out for Hongkong.

Often winds of gale force had to be encountered by the salvage ship, which was swept by waves during the 40 days it spent in the work since leaving Hongkong six weeks ago.

The two ships will probably leave Hongkong to-day on the Yusho Maru completing her bunkering. They will then make for Moji, and the Batavia Maru will be docked at Osaka.

RACE RIOTS

Threats against negroes were heard on many occasions. Crowds turned ugly later and picketed the Oyer School where fights were picked with any negro who chanced to pass that way.

Negroes then joined forces and attempted to advance across the viaduct separating Cincinnati from Harlem, a "poor white" settlement. Feelings reached fever pitch and police have their hands full at this moment.—United Press.

ROOSEVELT CAMPAIGNS

GENERAL HO'S DENIAL

NO INVITATION TO GO TO JAPAN

Nanking, Sept. 26.

The report which appeared in certain Japanese papers in Shanghai yesterday that General Ho Ying-ching's was to visit Japan, has been completely denied by the Nanking War Minister, in an interview given to pressmen this morning.

General Ho Ying-ching also said that he was not aware of the object of Mr. Li Chek-yi's recent mission to Japan, nor he did know the result of his mission. He was surprised when he read of his own being asked Mr. Li to take up any negotiations with the Japanese Government.

General Ho Ying-ching said he had wired to Mr. Li at Shanghai and enquired whether Mr. Li himself had made the statement reported in the Japanese newspaper. A reply had been received saying that the report was absolutely groundless.

The report was to the effect that General Ho Ying-ching was leaving for Japan next month, and that he may be accompanied by Mr. Li Chek-yi.

How the Rumour Arose

A spokesman of the Nanking War Ministry also denied the report. He added that the rumour might have arisen from the fact that the War Minister saw the Japanese Military Attaché recently and the latter invited General Ho Ying-ching informally to Japan to attend the coming military review.

Many pictures of topical interest will appear in to-morrow's issue of the Telegraph Pictorial Supplement. These will include a series of photographs taken at the Boy Scout display at Kowloon last Saturday. Other pictures will include a group taken at a dinner given by the Post Office staff to Mr. Hynes, Superintendent of Mails, on the occasion of his 55th birthday.

The spokesman added that so far no official invitation from the Japanese Government had been received by the War Minister, nor had he decided to make a trip to Japan at the suggestion of the Japanese Military Attaché.

The spokesman went on to say that the Japanese Military review which was scheduled to be held next month had been postponed to November 13. The date fell on the opening of the 6th. Plenary Session of the Kuomintang Executive and it was not likely that General Ho would leave China during this important event.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Chiang Kai-shek Rumour

Official opinion in the Capital deeply regrets these reports which are considered in some quarters as provocative, especially at a time when the relations between the two countries are gradually improving.

In the same Japanese owned paper is also a report stating that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has secretly come to an agreement with the Reds in Szechuen and that China may seek help against any threat from Japan by co-operation with Soviet Russia.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

TRAFFIC OFFENCES

SEVERAL CASES IN COURT

F. L. Parton, driver of motor cycle No. 58, was fined $10 by Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on a summons for driving in Main Street, Shaokwan West, which is closed to motor traffic, without permission from the I. G. P., on September 10 at 8.20 p.m.

Defendant explained that he had parked his machine outside the Police Station, and had gone to see a friend. He had driven along that road on several previous occasions, and also with the Flying Squad, but had never seen the sign, which was placed in a not too conspicuous position, and hardly noticeable at night.

C. Bitzer, driver of private car No. 372, was fined $16 for overtaking and passing two lorries and a car on a bend in Pokfulam Road near Hok Sze Terrace on September 11.

Traffic Sergeant You said defendant commenced to overtake the other vehicles on a left hand bend and finished on a right hand bend. It was such a sharp bend that the driver's vision would have been limited to only about 15 yards.

KOWLOON CASES

Among the traffic offenders summoned before Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, was a Chinese lady motorist who had two counts to answer. She was summoned as the result of an accident in which a Chinese woman, who was presumably waiting for a bus, was crushed and a cyclist was knocked down in Waterloo Road.

The summonses against the defendant, Miss Gertie Chan, of No. 161 Waterloo Road, Kowloon Tong, were (a) driving private car No. 1093 without due care and caution at Waterloo Road near Essex Crescent on September 9 and (b) failing to have two independent and efficient brakes.

Mr. C. Y. Kwan appeared for the defendant, while Mr. S. Ng Quinn held a watching brief over the proceedings on behalf of the woman Mrs. Yeung Yee, who was knocked down. Mr. Quinn informed the Court that the woman was still in hospital.

Traffic-inspector A. Nicol, in outlining the case, stated that private car No. 1093 was being driven down Waterloo Road towards Prince Edward Road at 4 p.m. on September 9 by defendant. It was alleged that defendant overtook bus No. 118 and cut in front of bus No. 109, which was coming towards Kowloon Tong. Defendant's car swerved round and crushed a woman who was standing at the bus stop, and also knocked down a cyclist.

The case was remanded until 2.30 p.m. on Tuesday next. As the result of the previous case, Chan Nai-pai, the owner of the private car No. 1093, appeared to answer a summons for failing to have his car equipped with two independent and efficient brakes. Mr. C. Y. Kwan appeared for the defence.

Defendant stated that he did not know at the time of the accident that the brakes of his car were inefficient. The car was being driven by witness' daughter at the time.

Questioned, witness stated that the car, when first bought, was driven by his son. Since August last year the car had been very seldom used, and on those occasions it was used by his daughter.

This case was also remanded until Tuesday afternoon. Pleading guilty to a summons for failing to carry a rear light on his private car No. 2968, Robert Percy de la Sala, of No. 298 Prince Edward Road, was fined $3.

Defendant pleaded that, on the afternoon of the offence he arrived here from Shanghai on the Conte Rosso, and as the car had been used on the night before, he thought that everything was all right.

Do you get headaches

at the end of the day?

Do you feel "all in" at the end of the day's work—nervous, irritable, unable to concentrate? Ten to one it's your eyes that are the whole cause of the trouble.

Your eyes never get a moment's rest. All through the day they are hard at work, constantly focussing and re-focussing, concentrating on written and printed matter, often under artificial light and in a close, smoky atmosphere. Even when you relax they still have a gruelling time, exposed to the fast-moving lights of traffic, the flickering of a cinema screen, the constant irritation of tobacco smoke.

There's one sure way to put an end to those recurrent headaches—bathe your eyes with Optrex night and morning. This gentle tonic lotion soothes away soreness and tiredness, and cleanses the eyes of all impurities. Optrex gives your eyes a new lease of vigorous life, enabling you to tackle the hardest day's work without the slightest sensation of eyestrain.

Whether you wear glasses or not, have your eyes examined regularly by a Qualified Practitioner.

THE FUTURE OF ETHIOPIA

One of the most surprising suggestions made in connection with the Italo-Ethiopian dispute was that recently put forward by a French commentator, who urged Signor Mussolini to accept the proposals advanced by the Committee of Five, saying it represented an offer which saved the face of the League but outwardly preserved Ethiopia's independence. The commentator added that "in a few years, under the cloak of international supervision, Italy could have the finances, politics, and economic life of the country, and thus the whole country, under her control." Happily, this does not represent the official French viewpoint, but the implications are such that they can hardly be permitted to pass unnoticed. Actually, the Committee of Five has in no sense sought to save the face of the League, nor do its proposals infringe the independence of Ethiopia, a fact which is amply proved by Ethiopia's willingness to accept the scheme of assistance put forward. The whole object of the League's intervention in the dispute is based on a desire to do justice to Italy, and, at the same time, to protect Ethiopian independence in the process. No plan of settlement which ignores this latter point can possibly be acceptable to Ethiopia nor square with the principles on which the League is acting. It is apparent, however, that Italy's policy is based more on a desire to secure complete overlordship of Ethiopia than to secure protection for her colonies. So much is obvious from the claim put forward by Baron Aloisi that "Ethiopia should be rendered innocuous." On this point, the Italian delegate, commenting on the Committee's scheme of assistance, argues that there have already been too many specialists sent to Ethiopia, remarking that all that these specialists have done is to raise the Ethiopian forces to a modern state of efficiency, which was all the more dangerous to Italy. Reading between the lines, it would appear that Italy is willing that Ethiopia should be modernised, on Italy's own terms, in all other respects, than in the matter of defence against possible aggression. In other words, Rome wants a weakened, and not a strengthened, Ethiopia next door to her African colonies. Once that position were created, the task of Italian penetration would

NOTES OF THE DAY

AFTER MUSSOLINI... WHAT?

There are rumours, given prominence by the radical press of Paris, that Signor Mussolini's position at the head of the Italian state is not as secure as is popularly supposed. It is even suggested that Il Duce may be replaced as head of the Fascist Government of Italy. That might mean the end of the dictatorship, and, quite conceivably, of the Fascist party's power in the country. At the moment, we do not predict any such event, and it is safe to say that the mass of the Fascist organisation is loyal to its chief, and that any move on the part of opponents to displace him would result in civil war. However, if Signor Mussolini is determined to proceed with his campaign against Ethiopia, flaunting the Powers represented on the League Council and scrapping Italy's pledges under the Kellogg Pact and subsequent treaties, it would be better for the peace of Europe if he were to be removed even at the cost of imperiling Italy's internal peace. But again, it is unlikely that he will be. Whether it is true or not, it seems to be the feeling in Italy that if Mussolini is deposed, or disposed of in some other fashion, the country will descend into chaos. True enough is the argument that the form of Government Italy possesses, concentrated in the hands of one man, is a dangerous thing to tamper with and that it is likely to cause catastrophe if its head is suddenly struck off. There is always the danger of rivalry within the party, as we saw recently in the lesser case of Senator Long's dictatorship in Louisiana, which appears to have ended with that autocrat's assassination. At the same time, the Fascist machine is apparently well organised and sufficiently powerful in Italy to survive even such a storm as Mussolini's passing would cause, and we cannot think that Italy's case would be so desperate as many imagine in the event of his relinquishing the reins of Government. Some day he must retire. Presumably he plans to hand on his command to a suitable successor. That man may have been chosen already, and have all the qualities of leadership and statesmanship which are necessary attributes of Caesar. There is no justification for saying that after Mussolini must come chaos. It would be as fair to say that if he remains he will lead his country down the bloody paths of war. If both assertions are true Italy's plight is pitiful indeed, and her future unpleasant to contemplate.

HELPLESSNESS OF MAN

We are striving to discover a means of permanently averting war. The world's greatest diplomats are pondering the puzzle of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, and they can find no compromise. And what a small hope they have, if the inadequacy of man's intelligence is to be judged by his acceptance of defeat in other things, less dangerous, perhaps, but still important. For years men have been trying to get rid of old razor blades, and although they have buried them deep in their back gardens, wrapped them in tin boxes and stuffed them into the dustbin, or thrown them into the sea, they are still a source of worry to the masses. Man has learned to fly and to travel under the sea; he has made light and fire and diamonds and cinema, and wonderful weapons for killing his fellow men. But he has found no safe place to put his old razor blades, and he has as yet been unable to find a certain means of preventing war. We can avert war... sometimes... yes; but what about to-morrow? Shall we solve the problem of old razor blades by storing them in a dark closet, one by one, to be thrown away at some later date, by someone who may blunder in and cut his fingers on them?

be rendered all the easier. The nations which are standing up for vital principles in this dispute could not possibly countenance such a method of dealing with the situation. Whatever settlement is reached must, above all else, ensure the integrity and independence of Ethiopia. No arrangement which falls short of this requirement can be regarded as either adequate or fair.

ADVICE TO SOVIET MAN OF IRON

BY OLIVER BALDWIN

IT is just over fourteen years ago that I had the misfortune to spend many uncomfortable and frightening weeks in a Russian prison, and the result of my sojourn there has left me with a great respect for political prisoners and a great terror of prisons in general. When this unpleasantness descended upon me and I was herded among a strange medley of once prosperous capitalists, former exiled Socialists, and Communists who had been imprisoned for drunkenness or failure to keep within the strict moral code of the revolution, I heard much talk of Lenin and Trotsky.

Admiral Kolchak had gone to his end violently enough; General Denikin had been awarded an English K.C.B. and was in France; and General Wrangel had just been defeated. All this had been due to Lenin and Trotsky. One of my fellow prisoners—an Armenian professor of statistics—had formerly been in Siberia, exiled with several of the present Soviet leaders, and he spoke with admiration of a Georgian named Dzhughashvili.

According to him, no man had ever been so brave (except, of course, Andranik, the Armenian national hero), and there was no doubt this Georgian was a coming man. Few of the other prisoners had heard of him, but when they were reminded his name was now Stalin—"man of steel"—they remembered he had been with Lenin during the critical days of the October revolution and knew him as a fine organiser.

This is his eleventh year in supreme control of Russia, and however much we may abhor the methods by which the revolution was brought about, the work that has been done among that vast, illiterate, dull, and semi-barbaric people is certainly stupendous. There have been many changes in method since Lenin's death, and to-day, although Russia may be called a Socialist State, it is certainly not a Communist one.

In the early days of Communism the members of the party were willing supporters of a Spartan code of discipline and moral strictness. Drinking alcohol was forbidden them; exhibitions of personal selfishness or temper were sufficient for expulsion from the party, and rigid equality was insisted on in food and comforts. Now that so many more leaders, foremen, and executive officers are needed for the ever-increasing development of the country the code has been loosened, and there is no longer that rigid difference between actual and non-members of the Communist Party.

Gradually a bourgeoisie is arising, though it is not one based on wealth but on service quality. It is to make room for new goods and to expand their wholesale department, Komor's are offering 1,000 pieces of their regular stock—cigarette cases, kimono, ivory, porcelain, etc.—at public auction to be conducted by Mr. Lammert, on Tuesday at 10 a.m. Never before has there been such an opportunity to purchase beautiful articles of a quality like Komor's at auction prices.

Out of 1,000 pieces, only about

is now that the skilled workman and the intellectual are taking the places formerly held by the landowners and industrial magnates, and because of their position of authority they naturally tend to form a class by themselves.

Slowly Russia is becoming self-supporting, and with the increase of means of transport the standard of living is bound to rise. The most striking thing in the country to-day is the poor material of the people's clothing, but there is no reason why, under the guidance of the American and British experts, factories may not be erected to deal with this weakness.

Russia has not yet overcome her difficulties with her own peasants. Immediately after the revolution these peasants were promised their own land, and naturally enough when they entered into possession they thought they could do what they liked with their own. It did not enter their heads that organisation would be needed so that their produce might be available for others than themselves, and as they are illiterate it is taking much patience and energy to "bring them into line."

So much has Stalin done for them; but against it looms the great shadow of the police, the prisoners who have not agreed with the powers that be, the old Russian prison methods of which I had my share, and the continuance of exile. Surely by now the Russian system is strong enough to withstand criticism. Surely a new Russia should be able to get away from those very police methods under which her pioneers suffered for so long. There can be no wholehearted sympathy with the great Russian experiment until these anachronisms are removed.

It is time "my friend Stalin" changed this and made Russia as free a country as our capitalist one, for a start. Before the war, it is perhaps interesting to recall, international Socialists—looked upon as cranks, murderers, or lunatics—held conferences in the different capitals of Europe. Among the numbers of that international of "dangerous fanatics," either as delegates or members, where the following men: Lenin, Trotsky, and Stalin of Russia, Mussolini of Italy, Pilsudski of Poland, Vandervelde of Belgium, Ebert of Germany, Branding of Sweden, Troelstra of Holland, Viviani, Brinard, and Millerand of France, and MacDonald and Snowden of England—four dictators of their country, five Prime Ministers, one President, and four Ministers of State.

I mention this, among other reasons, because I believe "my friend Stalin" may go down to history as the greatest of them all.

KOMOR'S ART AUCTION

CHANCE TO OBTAIN BARGAINS

To make room for new goods and to expand their wholesale department, Komor's are offering 1,000 pieces of their regular stock—cigarette cases, kimono, ivory, porcelain, etc.—at public auction to be conducted by Mr. Lammert, on Tuesday at 10 a.m. Never before has there been such an opportunity to purchase beautiful articles of a quality like Komor's at auction prices.

Out of 1,000 pieces, only about

25 will be started at reserve prices, which have already been offered by prospective customers. No. 50, a genuine old ivory tusk of the Ching Lung Dynasty, appears to be one of the outstanding art objects, while No. 951, a beautiful 42-piece hand-painted eggshell porcelain tea set, will also appeal.

Space does not permit mention of all the gorgeous articles, but all the goods to be auctioned are on display now, and Komor's will be pleased to explain any of them to those interested. Though the display is on now from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Komor's art gallery will remain open till 7 p.m. on Monday for the benefit of those unable to call earlier.

"Now, can you promise that this house will be delivered by Monday? We've asked a lot of people out."

The Very Idea!

ABOUT FIREMAN

Writing In Our Asbestos Underpants

Edited by Eddie

A WOPPING big fire has destroyed property valued at a million quid at Wopping. That's what we call a real fire. But it was tough on the firemen.

Having been a fireman for eleven years we are in a position to state, that a fire is the worst thing that can happen to a fireman.

Imagine yourself sitting behind three Aces and a pair of Jacks and a dollar thirty-five in the kitty and some mug phones about a fire in Pinkadoodle Street.

The engine you have been polishing every day for six months has to be brought out and have its polish ruined.

We shall never forget the time when a gentleman said to the brigade, "Will you spray some water on them ungettridable socks. Otherwise, we'll never be able to get rid of 'em as slightly damaged by water."

It is untrue that a fireman takes his hat off with a tin-opener.

Firemen get dressed in a few seconds. This sounds a bit hurried, but imagine the long sleep they can have when there's no fires.

After every fire a fireman hangs his hose up, whether it's Christmas or not.

We gave up being a fireman some time ago.

For one thing, the suspense of waiting for no fires to happen ruined our nervous system, and another thing, we got three convictions for exceeding the speed limit.

Another reason was that we had to give up visiting our girl friend, because every time we turned out the light the place used to burst into flames and it got that way that all our co-workers were ever cluttering up the place.

And another thing, nobody's going to tell us to go to blazes.

STIFF

(With apologies to all concerned.)
If you are broke, with nothing in the rent,
And rent and bills and payments overdue,
If day by day, life's weary road seems harder

And shavers are clamouring for you,
If you've no hope of finding a banana
The sort that yields twelve ounces to the ton,
Then, with our Ed. and him that's penned this stanza,
You are a modern Hongkongite, my son.

HOOP-LA

ABOUT this chap we read about in the Telegraph who is skipping from Sydney to Melbourne without stopping.

Pooh! We know dozens of chaps who've skipped from Hongkong. Ask some of our taiwan firms.

The Australian chap is skipping for a wager. The only difference is that the Hongkong skippers skip with their wages.

We often wonder who would be willing to lay wagers on freak contests. We are going to start one of them.

We shall challenge our Editor to push a wheelbarrow across Siberia, hopping on one foot. And when he comes back and puts his barrow wearily down outside our flat the neighbour in the flat below will say: "Kelly? He left here a week ago."

And we shall go to the Chief Accountant at the H.K. & S. Hotels and say to him: "Excuse me, but would you mind bowling a hoop around the world for a bet?"

Then we would go along to the chap who has a 2 a.m. radio set in the flat above and say: "We bet you aren't game to sit on a two hundred foot pole for about six years."

And then we had got them all sitting on poles, and pushing barrows, and walking from Hongkong to Haifa, and slipping on banana skins from Kowloon to Bulchistan, we would fit down, fold our hands one within the other, and begin to enjoy life.

WAPPING BLAZE SPREADS

24-HOUR BATTLE IN LONDON

ENORMOUS LOSSES

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, 1935. Received, September 27, 6 a.m.)

London, Sept. 26. Twenty-four hours after the alarm had been given, the seven-story warehouse at the Colonial Wharf, Wapping, is still blazing. The outbreak, which is one of the biggest riverside blazes seen in London for many years, today spread to an adjoining warehouse containing stocks of tea, but scores of firemen rushed to the building, checking the flames before they reached the stocks.

During the day, the roadway was blocked by huge masses of masonry which crashed down from the burning building. An explosion which accompanied a burst of flame alarmed the dwellers of near-by tenements this afternoon, but nobody was injured. Fire brigade officers declared this evening: "We have still a long fight ahead, but we are reasonably sure that we have saved the tea warehouse."

The loss is already over £1,000,000.—Reuter Special.

PRECARIOUS JOB

A British Wireless message states that firemen were still at work seeking to subdue the flames, which, though under control, continue to burn fiercely through the lower floors, with occasional explosions. The walls are gradually collapsing and the street is flowing with liquid rubber from burnt stores.

River boats continue their attack on the burning building and firemen are perched precariously on cranes on adjacent wharfs. Five engines from all parts of London and the suburbs were arriving during the day, bringing men to relieve those who have been on continuous duty for long hours and a few of whom have suffered minor injuries.—British Wireless.

Soviet Art Treasure

TO BE DISPLAYED IN LONDON

London, Sept. 26. Professor Eumorphopoulos and Mr. Leo Ashton, of the Victoria and Albert Museum, have returned from a successful visit to Moscow for the purpose of asking the Soviet Government to lend some of its art treasures for the Chinese Exhibition being held at Burlington House.

The Soviet Government readily agreed to send a quantity of rare tapestries of Mongolia and Chinese Turkestan.

Especially noteworthy are some woven silks of the Han Dynasty and very early Buddhist tapestry of mythological characters against a green and red background, which Mr. Leo Ashton says are the most beautiful specimens he has ever seen.

Valuable additions made to the Exhibition include a painting on silk, of the Tang Dynasty, lent by Belgium. The earliest paintings so far obtained are of the Sung Dynasty. Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, jr., is lending a priceless group of statuary, also of the Tang Dynasty.—Reuter.

BOY SCOUTS RETURN

BACK FROM UNITED STATES

A party of 32 Filipino Boy Scouts arrived here this morning from America by the Empress of Canada en route to Manila. The Scouts passed through Hongkong some months ago when on their way to America to attend the jamboree to be held there. This proved impossible, however, since an outbreak of infantile paralysis made the congregation of so many young people in the danger zone undesirable. The party were given receptions in many places in America, however, and shown the country thoroughly during their stay there. They were also received by President Roosevelt before they left for home.—The party will continue to Manila to-night.

FRENCH HOPES DIMINISH

ITALY UNMOVED BY GENEVA STAND

HARSHER FORMULA FOR SETTLEMENT LIKELY

Paris, Sept. 26.

Hopes for the success of the Geneva talks and that their outcome will be a formula which will make possible the settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel, are steadily diminishing.

Le Temps, one of the best-informed Paris newspapers, in an editorial, declares: "Nothing is yet saved; all is not lost."

While it is generally agreed that there will be a breathing spell of ten or fifteen days for negotiations before sanctions procedure commences, the opposition of many members of the League to the Committee of Five's report is regarded by some as not encouraging. They draw from it the conclusion that the Council Committee's recommendations for settlement of the affair will be even less generous to Italy than those which the Committee of Five achieved.—Reuter.

FOREGONE CONCLUSION

Rome, Sept. 26. To-day's proceedings at Geneva were regarded as a foregone conclusion here to-night and drew very little comment.

Authoritative quarters informed Reuter that the Italian delegation would stay at Geneva and patiently await the outcome of the Committee's deliberations.

"But we have not much hope," a spokesman said. It is declared here that one committee has succeeded another in the "Geneva tradition," but that the second Committee begins its work with Italy in a very much stronger position since the report of the Committee of Five recognised the inability of Ethiopia to manage its own affairs.

TWO ALTERNATIVES

Writing in the Giornale d'Italia, Gayda says there are two ways in which the Covenant can be applied to the dispute. One is by the application of the first three paragraphs of Article XVI, which opponents of Italy's action hold justified sanctions. But the other is the fourth paragraph of Article XVI, providing for exclusion from the League of any member violating one or any of the undertakings of the Covenant.

In this instance the Covenant would be applied against Ethiopia, he pointed out. He also discussed Article XIX.—Reuter.

LEAGUE DECISION

Geneva, Sept. 26. The decision which the League Council reached at to-day's meeting, to take action with reference to the Italo-Ethiopian dispute under Clause Four of Article XV of the Covenant, involves preparation for the publication of a report containing a statement of the facts of the dispute and recommendations which are deemed justified.

This is not the first time the Council has decided upon such a course. Exactly the same procedure was adopted in the case of the Gran Chaco War and the Sino-Japanese dispute.

Britain also once invoked action under Article XV in an oil dispute with Iran which was finally settled by negotiation.—Reuter.

"CAPTAIN FOSTER" REVIEWS SATURDAY'S RACING

THRILLS GALORE AT HAPPY VALLEY

HANDICAPPER'S SMART WORK IN ISLAND BAY EVENT

ABLE AMAZON CREATES RECORD FOR AUSTRALIAN PONIES

(By "Capt. Foster")

The feature of the Eighth Extra Race Meeting under the auspices of the Hongkong Jockey Club which was held last Saturday under ideal weather was, as predicted, that Able Amazon (an Australian Sub-Griffin of 1934 owned by Mr. "Fathan") established a new record for five furlongs, lowering the previous best time by a second.

The best race of the day was in the Island Bay Handicap, "C" Class (First Section) in which, after a most exciting and thrilling finish, the judges had, after careful deliberation, to award a "Dead Heat" to Soldier of Peace and Monoplane. Had the latter won, the solitary holder of the ticket for the second leg of the Daily Double Event would have collected over $2,500 instead of $1,452.80. In my notes I said that the Handicapper had set a knotty problem for fans to spot the winner in this race and I very much regret that none of my nominations was placed.

The starting under the able guidance of Mr. Alec. Potts was perfect, and is deserving of the highest praise. Mr. Donald Black is to be congratulated for his sound judgment in riding three winners and a third, while Mr. Leo Frost was next best with two firsts and two seconds, and Messrs. G. Roza and Pih secured one win each. Messrs. Dietz and Pih had a "dead heat" for it. Win, the latter eventually breaking his "duck" for the year.

THE OPENING EVENT

The curtain raiser was in the Big Wave Bay Handicap (Six Furlongs) when nine ponies lined up for the race. Running away tactics, which proved fatal, were adopted by Clear View, Flybynight and Harvest View. The race was too difficult altogether, especially in the first quarter up the Black Rock which was covered in 28.4/5th seconds while the first half was run in 59.1/5th. Mr. Black on Bonny Dundee preferred a waiting race and on coming into the straight for the home run, he made no difficulty in overhauling Clear View, who by this time, was labouring, and won in easy fashion with 10 lbs. to spare. Foxbridge did not have a good start, but nevertheless had no trouble to beat Harvest View who just managed to nose out his stable companion Clear View, for a place. I said last Friday that Harvest View was on the fat side but that he might be placed. He was and paid $46.

As predicted, and favoured with glorious weather, Able Amazon had no difficulty in establishing a new record, namely 1.02.3/5th seconds, with 155 lbs. (10 lbs. over Weight for Inches) in the Corroboroe Handicap, Five Furlongs race, lowering Shooting Star's record by a second. It was a grand race to watch and I firmly believe that Able Amazon could knock off another second or more, after the distance drop. Mr. Leo Frost was only sitting on her.

At the release of the barrier in what was incidentally the best start of the day, Derby Day (Mr. Butler) made the running and it may be interesting to know that the mare covered the first furlong in 12.3/5th seconds and the next two were done in 24.1/5th seconds but when rounding the bend for the straight, Mr. Butler called on Derby Day for a final spurt to which she could not respond. Just before the distance post, Able Amazon, who was always at the rear, drew level with Derby (Continued on Page 9.)

FORMER OXFORD GOLFER

BEATEN IN FINAL AT STOCKHOLM

SWEDISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP

Stockholm, Sept. 1. K. Morrice, the former Oxford University golf captain, was beaten in the final of the Swedish amateur open golf championship over thirty-six holes to-day by G. Falk, of Stockholm, at the 37th hole. Falk is the first Swede to win the Swedish open amateur since 1913.

Morrice was one up at lunch, and actually three up at the twenty-first; but at the twenty-fifth the Oxonian had the misfortune, when stymied, to knock his opponent's ball into the hole to lose a hole which he should have won. Falk was then only two down instead of four, and he squared the match at the 34th. Morrice had his chance then, for he won the thirty-fifth to become dormy one, but Falk, his steadiness unshaken, took the thirty-sixth, and on they went to the thirty-seventh.

Both hit good drives, but Falk was on the green with his second, whereas Morrice was a shade short. Morrice was short with his run-up and left himself a long putt, whereas Falk was only a yard from the hole. Morrice made a bold bid and his putt nearly dropped, but it was a shade hard and, after hitting the lip of the hole, stopped out. Falk made no mistake and the match was his. Morrice was round in 156, with scores of 76 and 80. Falk was round in 152 with scores of 77 and 75. Par for the course is 71.

MISS RAMSDEN LOSES

In the final of the women's championship Miss A. Ramsden (Sunningdale) lost her Swedish title, being beaten in the 36 holes final by Miss K. Timberg, by one hole, after being three up at the end of the first 18 holes.

The Scottish Football League has announced that their match against the English League has been arranged to take place at Ibrox Park, Glasgow, on Wednesday, October 30.

NEW READING MANAGER

ANOTHER OF BOLTON'S FAMOUS FORWARDS

The accession of William Butler to the post of honour at Reading means that four great forwards associated in their prime with the Bolton Wanderers club are now football managers.

Butler follows in the wake of Joe Smith (Reading's former manager, who is now in charge at Blackpool), David Jack (Southend) and Ted Vizard (Swindon).

The new Reading manager, who joined the club as an outside-right soon after Joe Smith took over and had been signed on again for this season, is a native of Atherton and his father was a Rugby player.

Mr. H. H. Palmer, who has been connected with Chelsea for nearly 24 years, will take over the assistant-secretaryship rendered vacant by the death of his brother, Mr. A. J. Palmer.

CHINESE GIRL'S AMAZING TENNIS

WINS 61 GAMES IN A ROW

"NOT SO GOOD" AT SCHOOL!

(By Stanley N. Doust)

London, Sept. 2. Won 61 games in succession in a lawn tennis championship. Lost only five games in six rounds of the singles.

Won the singles, doubles, and mixed doubles. These were the achievements of Miss Gem Hoahing, the 14-year-old Chinese girl, in the Middlesex junior lawn tennis championships at Harrow on Saturday.

She played five rounds to reach the final of the girls' singles and won them all by 6-0, 6-0. She won the first game in the final against Miss A. Cardinal (who) she eventually beat by 6-4, 6-1) to give her the total of 61 games in a row. This is a world's record for any player in a championship event.

To lose only five games in six rounds equals the record set up by Miss Suzanne Lenglen, who won at Wimbledon in 1925 with the loss of five games.

Miss Hoahing is the smallest lawn tennis player who has ever won a championship. She is just 4ft. high.

She is, however, not so good at school as she is on the tennis courts. Mrs. Hoahing, her mother, lamented this fact to me. "Gem," she sighed, "is backward at school."

"When her report came in she said to me, 'It is not so good, mother, and it is not so bad. I am second from the bottom of my class.'"

Miss Hoahing is a pupil at the Twickenham County School.

TOO YOUNG FOR WIMBLEDON

Not Eligible For Junior Title

There are 51 entries for the boys' singles and 95 for the girls' singles in the Junior Championships of Great Britain, which were begun on the hard courts of the All-England Club at Wimbledon early this month, and there are 20 pairs in the boys' doubles and 42 pairs in the girls' doubles.

Neither R. E. Mulliken nor Miss D. Rowe is defending in the singles events.

Miss G. Hoahing, who has twice won the girls' singles in the Middlesex Junior Championships, and who also won the open singles in the Schoolgirls' Tournament, is not yet 15 years of age, and therefore still too young to enter.

A. W. GRIMMITT DROPS OUT

NOT PLAYING IN INTERPORT

A. W. Grimmer, selected as No. 3 to A. M. Holland for the second match in the forthcoming lawn bowls fortnight against Shanghai, will not be playing.

According to Grimmer himself he is leaving for the North early to-morrow morning in company with his daughter who is going on a health trip.

Grimmer's place will most probably be taken by J. Fraser.

Morpeth, two up. Mrs. Morpeth was formerly Miss Susan Tolhurst, of Victoria, and has won the championship on two occasions.

MIXED FOURSOMES

After finishing an equal first, Mrs. Walter Greenlees, of Troon, and an Australian, Mr. Dalrymple, were disqualified in the Australian Mixed Foursomes Golf Championship at Melbourne owing to a wrongly-marked card, according to a Reuter's message. They had rounds of 83 and 78-161. Another Anglo-Australian pair, Mrs. J. B. Walker (Island, Malahide), and Mr. Guest, tied for first place with Mr. Rae and Miss Marrie at 161, their respective rounds being 79 and 82 and 82 and 79. They will play off on Thursday.

Two other Anglo-Australian pairs finished equal second with 164. Miss Phyllis Wade (Ferndown) and Mr. Ivor Whitton and Miss Jessie Anderson (Craigie Hill), and Mr. Harvey both had rounds of 80 and 84. W. L. Hope, the former British Walker Cup player, partnered Miss Pam Barton (R. Mid-Surrey). Their aggregate was 171 (91 and 80); and Mrs. P. Hodson, the captain-manager of the British team, and Mr. Giles returned 185 (91 and 94).

U. S. BRIDGE WIN

ENGLISH PAIR IN ARREARS

DECIDING WHAT CARD TO LEAD

The first international contract bridge pairs match ever played was won at the Dorchester, Park Lane, W., by the American pair, Michael Gottlieb and Howard Schenken, who defeated the English players, H. Ingram and S. Hughes by 87 rubbers to 63 and by 41,120 points.

There was illustration of the sporting spirit in which the match has been played when Schenken, trying to make three no trumps, found that success or failure depended on whether he played the Queen or ten of clubs from dummy.

After deliberating for some time, he took a florin from his pocket, tossed it, and played the Queen. His proverbial good fortune did not desert him, for had he chosen the ten, Hughes's Jack would have made the trick and defeated the rubber contract.

Jack Allen, whose two goals against the Arsenal in the Cup Final of 1932 gave Newcastle United the F.A. Cup, has been transferred from Bristol Rovers to Gateshead.

Footballer-Cricketer's Dilemma

WHICH TO PLAY?

London, Sept. 4.

Jack Arnold, the Hampshire cricketer and Fulham Football Club's international forward, had to make a dramatic choice yesterday between playing for his county against Yorkshire at Portsmouth to-day and turning out for his club against Hull City at Hull.

He failed to report to the Fulham manager in the train leaving King's Cross, for Hull, last night, and he may therefore be expected to play against the champion county at Portsmouth to-day.

Several Fulham officials waited anxiously until the last moment for Arnold to arrive.

Earlier a telegram—"Cannot release Arnold"—had been received from the Hampshire Cricket Club, but in spite of this Fulham hoped that Arnold would obey their instructions.

They have now decided, I understand, to take action against Arnold. "For the last two years, apparently, this problem has arisen," Mr. J. Peart, Fulham's new manager, said yesterday: "now it will cease for ever."

RAISING FUNDS FOR OLYMPICS

NOVEL AMERICAN IDEA

REFLECTORS FOR MOTORCARS

The American Olympic Committee has hit on a novel idea to help finance its expedition to the Olympic Games.

It is issuing reflectors which can be attached simply to the back of motor-cars and bicycles. This reflector is constructed on the same principle as the "cat's-eye" for bicycles but is considerably larger, having a diameter of 3 1/2 inches.

It bears on its face a small replica of the official American Olympic emblem surrounded by the words: "American Olympic Fund, 1936."

The reflectors are sold for a dollar each, and are already to be seen on the cars of thousands of patriotic and sport-loving Americans.

Liverpool F.C. have secured the services of Van Vuuren, one of South Africa's best goalkeepers. Liverpool have been in negotiation for some weeks, despite a message from the Colony that he would not leave South Africa.

Day and went ahead to win comfortably by five lengths. Goldsmith and Mount Pilatus were outclassed.

BELMONT STAR'S WIN

I do not believe in blowing up any Jockey but I must certainly give Caesar his due. Mr. Donald Black deserves great credit in winning the Junk Bay Handicap "D" Class (Second Section) with Belmont Star. It is an exaggeration to say that Mr. Black is now riding with good judgment of pace. In the race referred to, he adopted a waiting policy and won easily with plenty to spare. The capability of race ponies is in their energy and speed, the latter must not be over-rated or over-estimated. It is essential to reserve a little of the speed for its final rush. Lucky Strike (Mr. Dietz) took the lead from the start and maintained it till the last quarter, but when entering the straight the pony was not withstanding the very liberal use of the whip, all out, and Lucky Strike was very lucky to get a place.

JOCKEY'S DEBUT

Mr. Cheung made his first acquaintance with Judge Foster in the Clear Water Bay Handicap (Five Furlongs) through High West and supporters were rewarded with $44.70 for a win. What's The Time was fancied by the writer to win but nevertheless the pony was third and paid $14. The Jockey, Mr. Ip Kum-in, is said to be excused as it was his maiden ride in the race. The pony finished strong but the Jockey was all out.

The first leg of the Daily Double was won by What A Chance in the Junk Bay Handicap "D" Class (First Section) and Mr. Pih had to ride hard to stave off Zero who was ridden by Mr. Ralph, an old timer, and it was his first place. In the "Pari" What A Chance paid $12.20 for a win and there were 223 chances on him for the Double.

Mr. Leo Frost, on Helman, rode one of the hardest races I have seen for a long time, in the main event Tweed Island Bay Handicap "B" Class over a mile but Macaroni, having a pull of 5 lbs. on the basis of Weight for Inches, managed to turn the table. At the fall of the flag, there was a rush from the barrier at full speed, the first quarter being done in 22.2/5th and the first half-mile in 58.4/5th seconds. With the exception of the first three placed ponies, namely, Macaroni, Helman and Rose Queen, the rest of the field finished almost crawling past the winning post. The race was set by King's Bounty but Mr. Black, on Macaroni, was wise enough not to follow, and it was his sound judgment of pace that won the race. The time, 2.00.3/5th was a creditable performance for "B" Class ponies.

UPSET OF THE DAY

The weighing-out for the Island Bay Handicap "C" Class (First Section) was watched with much interest owing to the fact that this race was for the second leg of the Daily Double and there were 223 successful punters on the first leg which was won by What A Chance. As the names of the ponies appeared on the Telegraph Board, there were several groups of fans discussing the prospects and when Victoria Hall's name was last posted and brought the field up to 16 starters, the crowd dispersed to back their fancies. All the ponies walked to the Starting Post with the exception of Soldier of Peace (Mr. Dietz) who, being a novice, was given a fast canter to warm up. There was a little delay in the start but as soon as the barrier was released, it was noticeable that no one wanted to do the pace-making, in view of the fact that Mr. Li Shu-wei had two runners (Soldier of Peace and Helman) and his brother Mr. L. T. F., also had two in High Speed and Victoria Hall. Although not the same owner, both Bistre and Bright Star were trained by Pang Yau, and Spinaway and Valorous are under the Russian trainer, Jack, who was formerly Mr. Johnnie Heard's No. 1 Boy.

It was obvious that all went out to do their best to win. However, the field was bunching going up the incline near the 1 1/4 Miles Post, the field was closing and at one time seemed from a distance that a blanket could cover them. The rail-birds, especially those at the Public Stand, were getting very excited when the field started to spread out for the home run and from this point onwards, there was nothing else but shouts.

A THRILLING RACE

Without the slightest exaggeration all the ponies at the Distance Post were in the main event Tweed Island Bay Handicap "B" Class over a mile but Macaroni, having a pull of 5 lbs. on the basis of Weight for Inches, managed to turn the table. At the fall of the flag, there was a rush from the barrier at full speed, the first quarter being done in 22.2/5th and the first half-mile in 58.4/5th seconds. With the exception of the first three placed ponies, namely, Macaroni, Helman and Rose Queen, the rest of the field finished almost crawling past the winning post. The race was set by King's Bounty but Mr. Black, on Macaroni, was wise enough not to follow, and it was his sound judgment of pace that won the

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

Police & East Lancashire "A" In Drawn Game

In a friendly game of hockey at the Police Training School ground yesterday afternoon, the Police second eleven drew with the "A" Company, East Lancashire Regiment. There were no scores.

The wet conditions made the ground slippery, and conditions were on the whole far from good. Nevertheless, a keen game ensued.

one could tell the Winner except the Judges, who took sometime to deliberate. In the meanwhile, the successful punters were impatiently waiting the decision of the Judges, especially the supporters of Monoplane, there being only 41 backers to win and a solitary ticket for the Daily Double. The Staff of the Staff of "Tommy Atkins" put the saddle numbers "1" (Soldier of Peace) and "2" (Monoplane) horizontally in the frame of the "Dead Heat" and "Short Head", the "two minutes" alliance was broken but I assure readers that no unparliamentary language was used. In the "Pari", Soldier of Peace paid $23.00 and Monoplane $66.60 to win and in the Daily Double, the former returned $128 and the latter $1,162.80.

ANOTHER CLOSE FINISH

Another thrilling finish was seen in the penultimate event, The Vaulcus Handicap over five furlongs for "Aussies" when Mr. Frost on Bob-nink Star won his second race, beating by a neck, Saucy Face who in turn accounted for Atlas by a length. I was very disappointed with Stramline who finished a bad fourth. However, this pony will win a race before the fall.

Good old Racing Boy, a hot favourite, let the punters down very badly in the last race, the Island Bay Handicap "C" Class (Second Section) and if my memory serves me right, he finished second last in a field of eight starters. Mr. G. Roza, on Gold Coin, nearly lost the race to the stable companion, Great Hall, (Mr. Frost) by looking round, which (without prejudice) is one of his bad habits. He there by the narrow margin and paid $17.60.

NEW STEWARDS

I am pleased to learn of the appointment of Dr. J. C. Macgown and Mr. E. B. Reed as Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club for both of them take a lot of interest in racing, especially the former gentleman who has been a Steward of the Fanling Hunt & Race Club since its inception. Owners are reminded that Entries for the Ninth Extra Race Meeting, which is to be held on October 10 and 12 close on Monday, September 30 at NOON, and that the conditions of the 6th race (Fulken Handicap—One Mile) on Second Day to be ridden by novices, have been modified to include the "B" Class. The conditions now are for China Ponies, "B" Class and Subscription Grifters of the Club. This Season that have not won a race at Race Meetings of this Club.

A. W. HAYWARD AND G. S. DUNKLEY THE RIVAL CANDIDATES

NET PRACTICE STARTS IN EARNEST AT THE HONGKONG C. C.

(By R. Abbi)

The bad weather of the last day or two has checked the activities of the enthusiasts, though in some cases I dare say they will be glad of a stand-easy to let some of the stiffness work off! The Club have made a start with question is, are we to adopt the rule their nets, pitched on the East side however, a definite, and a much more difficult decision will have to be made of the ground. One very curious thing has happened since last season, and that is in respect of the L.B.W. rule which, during the past season in the new Bank Building is going to make a lot of difference to the light County Cricket only, has been altered on the Club Ground. How much I am not quite sure yet. On the face of it, it will improve matters for the bowlers when the nets are pitched on the West side of the ground, and off the line of the wickets. The very possibly it will be quite useful for the other side.

As regards a game in the middle, I am not sure whether things may not be a little awkward for a few minutes, as a long black shaft of shadow may be cast across the field of play, but I think the shorter days come along and the sun is lower in the sky. Not being an astronomer, I don't know just how the thing will not say if any question of ancient lights is involved. I consider it improbable, however, that the Committee of the Hongkong Cricket Club will serve a notice upon the Corporation to "take that bumble away" or words to that effect.

AT NETS

I had a look at the practice on Monday and found the wicket on the slow side and looking spin pretty freely. There were several of the most enthusiastic old hands there, and a good sprinkling of N.O.s, as well. One of them, a sub-mariner, fear, looked more like a slow snail merchant than a definite wrong 'un. I have a lot of seasons out here. It is an awful pity from our point of view that my Lords do not appoint the cricketers to shore-going establishments. Spending a lot of money about the Commander Langreaves is about the naval officer who has played for Hongkong in my time, so far as I can remember. In this connection, I rather wonder what the Navy will be able to do about their side this season. The Fleet, if one may hazard a guess, may be even more far-flung than usual. I have no doubt, however, that they will raise a useful side somehow. There was a fast bowler who looked as if he might get a lot of wickets on a fast pitch with good slips, and I believe Lt. Com. Barry is managing their cricket.

THE INTERPORT

Practice for the Interport has not been started seriously yet, but one or two facts emerge. I now learn that H. Owen Hughes will not be returning to the Colony until December. If A. W. Hayward is fit and plays for the Colony the question of the captaincy will be solved, but if not, it will be interesting to see upon whom the choice falls. Personally, I should not be surprised to see Dunkley chosen. He has long experience and it is an ideal thing to skipper the side from behind the sticks. T. A. Pearce is so valuable with the ball, as well as being our star batsman, that it would in my opinion, be most judicious to put the cares of captaincy on his shoulders as well. He was batting beautifully in the nets the other night, and should be good for any amount of runs. If, of course, together with Ricketts and Dunkley are certain, as presumably is Teddy Fincher, and unless he has quite lost his form, Olive Garthwaite. But there are a tremendous lot of people who have claims to be considered for the remaining places, and it would not be surprising if in the end fielding ability did not tip the scale in some of the selections.

CHANGES IN THE LAWS

The change in the size of the stumps was adopted in Hongkong the season after it had proved to be a success in English cricket, although it was even there brought in only for County Cricket in the first instance. But its adoption by almost all clubs of any standing at home was immediate and Hongkong was with them. In the forthcoming season, the definite proposal of Lyttelton's was turned down, and it was stated that the members agreed with the umpires that they must be guided by the pitch of the ball only. They did however, approve the change that a batsman could be bowled after the straight ball had touched his legs or his person, and that the rule 24 should be amended accordingly and rule 27 also amended to prevent using "the bat or any part of one's person except the hands" to prevent the bat rolling on to the wicket after having been played. And here I find myself in a difficulty. I am morally certain that this change was tried, but as to whether it is still in force or not I really do not know; and I think you will find most local umpires also not quite clear in their minds as to what is the present law on the subject. As in the 1935 Widen the rules are printed without the two amendments mentioned above I assume that the innovation was not a success and has been dropped. I should be glad to hear from any of my readers. The Committee confirmed a recommendation made at a previous meeting

ing that the size of the wicket should be increased and this, as everyone knows has become part of the game. They adopted this in preference to reducing the size of the bat, chiefly it seems because it would interfere less with the trade. I hope to go into the recent changes more fully in a later article. I will conclude this one with the news which has just come to hand that the Selection Committee has been nominated, and that Messrs. R. H. B. Hancock, A. W. Hayward and G. S. Dunkley will serve. I sincerely hope that they "have power to add to their number. ## SERIAL STORY

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XXXVI

Neither of them moved. The dim light from the open window fell on Janet and made her white dress seem whiter. Her face was indistinct, half in shadow.

"Janet!" Rolf said, moving forward. And that was all. She told him, and her voice, naturally low-pitched, had a touch of huskiness. She hurried on, as though it were important to keep on speaking. "It's dark in here, isn't it? I don't know why the lights haven't been put on. Everyone seems to be gone to meet Betty." Rolf explained. "If she's not here she will be soon. Janet—I've never seen you looking so lovely." He was almost beside her now. "There's something about you to-night! What is it?" She smiled. "The dress, perhaps. It's new. Do you like it?"

"You look beautiful!"

Buster, the cat, squirmed uneasily in her arms and Janet bent to put him down. "Thank you for the compliment!" she said, looking up again at Rolf, and managed to say the words lightly. She moved to the table, touched the lamp and the room was bathed in a warm, amber glow. "There! That's better."

Rolf followed. "Please don't go!" he urged. "Stay here and talk to me. I've been wanting to ask how things are going with you. Is everything all right, Janet?"

"Why, of course."

"That's not what I mean. I mean—really!"

His sleeve brushed her arm and Janet stepped away. Then she met his eyes directly. "Everything is just as it always is," she said. "I'm—I'm happy!" She said it defiantly. "I don't know whether you are or not," Rolf began. "I don't know."

There was the sound of footsteps and the words broke off. Both Janet and Rolf turned. Betty Carlyle stood in the doorway. She was wearing a sheer yellow gown that fitted her snugly and then fell in huge, swirling folds to her feet. A rather daring gown and a daring little yellow hat perched sideways on her dark hair. She would have attracted attention anywhere but in that room her appearance was electric.

"Well!" Betty exclaimed. "What a charming scene! I hope I'm not intruding?"

There could be no doubt of the anger in her voice. She smiled but it was the silky smile that conceals a thrust-to-me.

"No, at all!" Rolf told her coolly. "Late, aren't you? I thought you'd be here when I came."

"Yes, I'm late. And how kind it's been of Miss Hill to entertain you. You didn't by any chance come early, did you?"

"Betty, don't talk nonsense!" She came into the room then, walking slowly. She came until she stood half-way between them. Looking directly at Rolf she said, "I will talk whatever and wherever I like and I don't think you'll try to stop me. Oh, no, I wouldn't try to do that! You might be sorry." Then she turned toward Janet. "Will you go tell my mother that we're here?"

Janet had been listening silently. Her face was white, almost as white as the dress she wore. "She won't be here," she said. "She went to meet Mr. and Mrs. Thornton."

"Oh, she's not here?" It was Betty speaking. "Well, in that case—if you can spare my husband—will he be going?"

"Betty, for Lord sake, what are you trying to do? Haven't I a right to stay here?"

"Janet? So that's what you call her. Really I didn't know you were such friends. This is interesting!"

"Why shouldn't I call her Janet? That's her name, isn't it? You call her that yourself. Mrs. Curtis calls her that."

Betty smiled sweetly. Too sweetly. She sat down and drew a cigarette from a case. "Go on, darling," she said. "I'm breathless to hear all about it." Rolf shrugged his shoulders, turned away in disgust. "All right," he said. "Make anything you like of it. I don't know what started all this but if you're determined to have a row I suppose there'll be one."

It was Janet who interrupted. She said, "Mrs. Carlyle, you surely don't think—"

"Never mind what I think," Betty retorted. She snapped a lighter that did not work and rose in annoyance. "Are there any matches in this house?"

There were matches in a container nearby and Rolf lit one for her, held it while the cigarette ignited.

Suddenly Betty's mood seemed to change. She said, "Oh, come along, Rolf. We were due at the Jamesons' half an hour ago." She put a hand on his arm as though to indicate that a trace had been established.

Turning to Janet she said, "Tell my mother we were here, will you? I'll call her sometime to-morrow."

A moment more and they were gone. Janet walked to the window and looked out. Completely dark outside except for lights in the windows of the house next door. She turned again toward the room. What an attractive room and what a hideous scene to have taken place there!

As though to get away from it Janet fled up the stairs to her bedroom. She closed the door behind her and sank into the big chair. What was to happen now? Was Betty angry? Did she really suspect Janet and Rolf were interested in each other?

They were all questions without an answer. What would Betty say to her mother to-morrow? A distorted story, of course, if she told any. "I won't worry," Janet told herself firmly. "There's nothing to worry about because nothing happened!"

She arose then and faced herself in the mirror. It was true. Nothing had happened, but how perilously narrow was the margin! It was a good thing Betty had come, even though she had misinterpreted the situation. Five minutes more—alone with Rolf and Janet knew she could not have trusted herself. She did not quite trust herself now.

She moved about the room nervously, picked up a magazine and put it down. There was nothing to which she could settle down. Finally she unbuttoned and hung away the white gown. She filled the tub with water, bathed and, though it was still early, turned out the light and slipped into bed.

If Betty ever mentioned the scene in the library to her mother Mrs. Curtis did not speak of it. Preparations for the trip to Silver Bay went on next morning just as they had before. The only difference was that now Janet was eager to get away. She had thought little about the trip; now she looked forward to it. Her confidence had been shaken and the summer resort seemed a refuge.

Wednesday morning they were to depart. Tuesday was a day of feverish activity with packing to be completed, last minute errands, inquiries by the telephone and by the doorbell, friends calling to see Mrs. Curtis, and Mrs. Curtis changing her mind about this and that.

Janet was never quite able to understand why so many details that would have been arranged simply anywhere else became immensely complicated in this household. Try as she would, she could not seem to plan otherwise. Mrs. Curtis would refuse to make up her mind until the last minute or she would make it up early and then change it.

It was with keen relief that Janet saw locks fastened and keys turned in the baggage Wednesday morning. It was with keen relief, too, that she followed Mrs. Curtis from the house to the waiting limousine. Frederick would drive them to the station, bring the car back and store it and then set off on his own vacation.

"You're sure, Janet, that you haven't forgotten anything?" Mrs. Curtis asked anxiously as the motor car drew away. "You're sure you have the tickets?"

"I have them," Janet assured her. And she had. They were safely tucked away in the purse under her arm.

"Well, I hope so," Mrs. Curtis had the worried air of the habitually inefficient.

They arrived at the station and Janet checked her baggage. All there. She turned to see a bright red jacket making toward them. It was Betty, looking unusually gay and vivacious.

"Thought I'd surprise you, Mother, by dropping around to say good-bye! How much time have you? Oh, that's the car. Well—come on!"

Betty seemed in the best of spirits. Janet heard her say that Rolf was to meet her for lunch. Betty chattered on until the brakeman's warning "All aboard!" A quick kiss then and she was gone.

Mrs. Curtis smiled. "Sweet of her to come, wasn't it?"

Janet said, "Yes, it was." Through the window she saw the red jacket hurrying toward a young man. But it was not Rolf. The young man was Van Bannister and he was standing beside a slate-colored roadster.

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

If you can picture the monster of "Frankenstein" and the vampire of "Dracula" vying with each other for horror honors, you can anticipate the chills and thrills that are packed into Universal's "The Raven," opening at the King's Theatre on Sunday. Suggested by Edgar Allan Poe's immortal classic, this film boasts the combined master mystery talents of Karlhoff (Frankenstein) and Bela Lugosi (Dracula). These two chills-chasers are co-starred in a story adapted to the screen by David Buchan and featuring in the supporting cast Irene Ware, Lester Matthews, Samuel Hinds, Inez Courtney and many others. Fraught with danger and mysticism, "The Raven" is a suspenseful, well-timed, and beginning to end, it is indeed a worthy successor to "Frankenstein" and "Dracula."

"Gold Diggers of 1935"

Gold digging has been a popular sport throughout the history of mankind and womankind. The technique has changed from time to time but the general idea of making the men pay and pay is the same. The daughters of Pharaohs had their own system when Greece was young. They simply sat on a mythological rock and sang ditties. Cleopatra reclined on a barge and looked coy. Pompey waved a fan and dropped her heavy-lidded eyes. The gold-digging sirens of modern times have used every weapon from short skirts to bathing suits and while there is little subtlety in their method, they manage to get results. "Gold Diggers of 1935," the First National Production commencing this Saturday at the Queen's Theatre, introduces another idea into gold digging. There is a woman in it who does the paying, while the gold digging is done by three men. Of course, there are other minor operations such as a public stenographer cheating Hugh Herbert out of a few thousand dollars, but the major enterprise is planned and executed by the men at the expense of a woman. "Gold Diggers of 1935" stars Dick Powell with Gloria Stuart, Adolphe Menjou, Hugh Herbert, Frank McHugh, Alice Brady, Grant Mitchell, Glenda Farrell, Winifred Shaw, Dorothy Dare and Ramon Rosita, the team dancers.

"Silk Hat Kid"

There must be a reason for it, when an unknown girl is chosen from among 300 amateur chorines for a New York stage engagement. Brown-eyed Mae Clarke, now teamed with Lew Ayres in Fox Film's "Silk Hat Kid" which is now at the Alhambra, justified the choice that led her to film fame. One of "Dawson's Dancing Dolls" at the Steeplechase Pier in Atlantic City, when Earl Lindsay visited his ex-partner, May Dawson, and witnessed a performance of her 100 puppets, Miss Clarke was chosen from the ranks of the dancers for an appearance with the Lindsay Revue on the Strand roof. Subsequent seasons at the Everglades and other exclusive New York night clubs led to her dancing in "Gay Parade," which she followed with a straight dramatic role in "The Noose." The versatile actress-dancer-orch singer was given the leading dancing role in "Manhattan Mary" before she was paired for a tour by Fox Film officials and the lead in her first film, "Big Time," with Lee Tracy. In the five years since she came to Hollywood, she has played everything from small town sleazebags, newspapermen, musicians, and a variety of other parts, including a role in "The Daring Young Man" opposite James Dunn. Paul Kelly and William Harrigan also play featured roles in "Silk Hat Kid," which was directed by Bruce Mitchell.

"Romance in Manhattan"

A thrilling love story that throbs in unison with the pulsating tempo of New York, drama that is rich in human interest and emotional appeal, and characterizations that become living realities under the magic touch of genius—these are the ingredients that have been combined to make the RKO-Radio's "Romance in Manhattan" now at the Star Theatre, one of the most promising films of the current season. Francis Lederer, international stage and screen favorite, is co-starred with Ginger Rogers in this poignant story of a friendless, penniless immigrant boy who looks toward America as the Promised Land, and a light-hearted chorus girl whose generosity far exceeds the scope of her meagre earnings. Others in the cast include such outstanding performers as J. Farrell MacDonald, Lillian Harmer and Jimmie Butler.

popular boy actor. Adapted from an original story by Norman Krassna and written by Edward Kaufman and Jane Murfin. Because of his special skill Stephen Roberts was assigned to the task of directing the picture. In this production, Francis Lederer brings to the screen the dash and heart-gripping appeal that has made him the idol of the American and European stage, and in the character of the immigrant boy he has his greatest opportunity to sway audiences to laughter or tears.

"Laddie"

Out of one of the world's most popular novels, the producers of "Little Women," have wrought another marvellous screen play "Laddie," so glowing with life and romance and drama, so filled with vital warmth and charm, that it ranks with the grand cinema's best. Showing at the King's Theatre to-day, "Laddie" holds its audience enthralled through its length. Perfect balance is the keynote to the cast which translates to terms of life, the world famous story that Mrs. Stratton-Porter penned, and which is said to have had 40,000,000 readers. For the title role there is John Beal, who repeats the success he won opposite Katharine Hepburn in "The Little Minister." For heroine there is Gloria Stuart, acting the "Princess" role, lending grace and beauty and high histrionic ability to one of the most famous feminine characters in all fiction. Gloria Stuart in the role of Sally, Laddie's sister, also repeats herself in finished actors. And weaving a wondrous thread of tenderness throughout the photoplay, there is the work of little Virginia Weidler as "Little Sister."

"His Greatest Gamble"

How a father and daughter who were incarcerated in individual cells of society offer each other release is dramatically unreel in "His Greatest Gamble" RKO-Radio picture, closing to-day at the Queen's Theatre. According to Salisbury Field's original screen story, the father is imprisoned in a gaol cell for unintentionally killing a woman. The daughter is a debutante who is molested to a penitentiary, artificial existence by her father's socialist mother. Even her hope of a wholesome romance is mocked by her mother. The situation reaches the father in his dark cell and inspires him to escape. He comes to his daughter's rescue, arousing her true spirit and own mind in a gripping climax. Dix as the father and Dorothy Wilson as the daughter are central characters in "His Greatest Gamble" in which John Robertson also directed. Bruce Cabot, Erin O'Brien-Moore, Edith Fellows and Shirley Grey.

WEST LOUNGE HO!
MEDITERRANEAN CRUISE AT THE Y.M.C.A.

To-night at 9 p.m. there sails from the Colony, a strange and secret ship, the like of which has never been seen before!

It is departing for a cruise in that most enchanting of seas, the Mediterranean, which, with all its many ports and countries, islands and peninsulas, offers attractions to which the adventurous and romantic will be drawn again and luxury and comfort. As an in-she is the fastest thing ashore is evinced by the Captain's command to "Sail to the Seilly Isles and back, before midnight, Guy Fawkes day."

Every whim of the passengers has been carefully studied, with the result that they will not suffer a dull moment once during the trip, a courteous and efficient crew doing everything in their power to make the cruise profitable and amusing.

MAINTENANCE CASE

DATE FIXED FOR HEARING

The case in which Ho Yuk-man, clerk in the General Post Office, is the defendant in a summons for maintenance brought by Fan Mo-lung, his wife, was mentioned before Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Police Court this morning when Mr. P. H. Sin appeared and stated he had just been instructed for the defence and applied for an adjournment.

Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios appeared on behalf of the complainant. The hearing was adjourned to October 9 at 2.30 p.m. The summons alleged that on or before August 24 he was guilty of persistent cruelty and wilful neglect to maintain his wife, Fan Mo-lung, causing her to leave and live apart from the defendant. At the previous hearing on Monday allegations that she had been the victim of an assault every month since 1924 were made.

SOLVES DROUGHT PROBLEM

AMERICAN EXPERT'S CLAIM

STUDIED IN MONGOLIA

Confident that he has solved the problem of drought and dust-storm in America's Middle West, Professor Nicholas Roerich arrived here this morning from Shanghai by the President Monroe after spending 16 months in Mongolia studying grasses and collecting grass seeds to send back to America.

Professor Roerich was sent to China by the Department of Agriculture at Washington and is now en route to India where he will collect further specimens of grass on the slopes of the Himalaya Mountains.

While in Mongolia, the Professor, who is accompanied by his son, sent back to the American laboratories over 300 specimens to be tried out there to see how they grow under American conditions. The Professor is confident that some of them will prove successful and will solve the problem of drought and dust storms which have so sorely tried the American farmers during recent years and most particularly during the last 18 months.

MAN TO BLAME

"Most deserts are the result of man's actions," stated the Professor in an interview today. "and in Mongolia we found subterranean streams even where there were deserts and no vegetation. The sorts of grasses we have collected have very long roots and not very long stems but they are very hardy and have a great food value for cattle. In Mongolia we found plenty of cattle thriving on such grasses even when they were not fed any corn at all."

While in Mongolia, the Professor sent home a number of samples of soil which will be studied in America. Before any real benefit is felt from the experiments five or six years will have passed, at least in the opinion of the experts, but they praise President Roosevelt's foresight in trying to provide a remedy for the farmer's troubles even though the benefits will take a considerable time to become felt.

MAN OF CULTURE

Professor N. Roerich is a recognised leader in world culture and the Roerich Museum in New York was named after him. He has won international fame as an artist, author, archaeologist, and philosopher. The Roerich Museum contains more than a thousand of his canvases, five hundred of which have to do with Asia. Leonard Andreggs, a distinguished connoisseur, said: "To see a painting by Roerich means to perceive a new world." Prof. Roerich has to his credit five hundred paintings showing the glories of the Himalayas. No other artist up to this day has been honoured with an entire skyscraper museum, 49 storeys high, to preserve and exhibit his paintings.

Prof. Roerich is a well-known author as well. "Realm of Light" is one of his most popular works, and he recently completed an article on the New Life Movement, and at present is writing an article on Dr. Bernard Reed's study of ancient Chinese medicines. Prof. Roerich is universally revered as one of the greatest living apostles of culture and he stands in the first rank of humanity's great interpreters of culture.

Travelling with his father is Dr. Georges de Roerich, who has written numerous books on Inner Asia, Mongolia, and Tibet. He recently completed a Tibetan and English dictionary which has not yet been published. A few of the books which he has written are "Trails to Inner Asia," "Tibetan Painting," "Grammar of Tibet," and "Tribes of Central Asia."

FRENCH CONSUL LEAVING

ILL HEALTH CAUSES TRIP HOME

A wide circle of British acquaintances, both official and unofficial, in addition to the French community, will learn with regret that ill-health compels M. R. Soulange-Teissier, French Consul General in Hongkong, to return to his native country shortly. It is probable that he will leave the Colony within a fortnight.

M. Soulange-Teissier has had about 35 years in the Far East. He returned from home leave in September last year and for some time past has carried on his duties under the burden of indigestion.

RUSSIAN SENT TO PRISON

LACKS VALID PASSPORT

Being his third offence of the kind, George Afonkin, 28, unemployed, of Russia, was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Magistracy this morning for entering the Colony without a valid passport. An expulsion order was also made.

Sergeant F. E. Russell stated that the position was that Afonkin had returned twice before. He wanted to be sent back to Shanghai, but he had no papers. If he wished to go to the North, he could travel by land from Canton or by steamer direct. This was explained to him before he was sent to Canton the last time. The defendant was discharged from prison on September 23 and sent to Canton the same day. He returned two days later on the steamer Sui An. He stated before he left that he would return. On his previous return to Hongkong, he stated he wished the Government to send him to Manchuria, and he came here for that purpose.

Defendant stated that he returned this time to get a ship to travel to Shanghai.

His Worship remarked that it was a case of the defendant simply not doing what he was told.

OTHER CASES

An expulsion order was granted against Bhag Ram, 30, unemployed farmer, of Lahore, India, who pleaded guilty to a similar charge.

Sergeant Russell explained that the man arrived from Singapore by an unknown ship on September 24 and the next day he reported himself. He was found to have no passport. He came here to seek employment as a watchman. There was no proof as to when he arrived—just his own story. The defendant had in his possession 30 rupees. The passage to India was $85. His case would be forwarded to the Government for his repatriation to India.

The Magistrate: I don't see why the Government should be put to extra expense in your case. All the money you have with you now will be used towards your passage instead of a fine.

Sergeant Russell explained that defendant wished to return to Singapore. Travelling from India to Singapore it was not necessary to have a passport, but from Hongkong to Singapore it was definitely necessary.

Yoshinori Mishimoto, 30, shop hawker, of 84 Jaffe Road, was fined $10 for a breach of the Registration of Persons Ordinance. He failed to notify the authorities of his change of address.

Sub-inspector W. H. Nolloth, prosecuting, explained that defendant registered with the police in July last year. In June this year, Japanese residents were shrouded up and warned that they must notify their changes of address. Yesterday the defendant was complainant in a larceny case and it was then discovered that he had changed his address. Defendant had forgotten to notify the police.

EARLY MORNING LOITERER

MAGISTRATE ORDERS FURTHER ENQUIRY

Remarking that it was desirable that further enquiries be made, Mr. Macfadyen, in the Central Magistracy this morning, remanded until to-morrow, Ng Wah, aged 20, unemployed, who was charged with being found on the staircase of 140 Des Voeux Road Central, second floor, at 5.15 a.m. yesterday and was unable to give a satisfactory account of himself.

Defendant pleaded that he went there to look for a friend to obtain a loan for the purpose of buying newspapers to hawk. He was away at the time. He was accused of loitering and was struck by the inmates. He formerly worked as a fook on the premises.

Detective Sergeant Fowle stated that complainant was on the second floor when she was awakened by a noise. She went out and saw the defendant. He went downstairs and passed another man. Defendant ran into Des Voeux Road Central and made his way to the Pray where he was arrested by a district watchman, with the complainant and a fook in pursuit.

It was explained by Sergeant Fowle that the entrance to the house was by a spiral staircase at the side of the building. A large shelf was there on which was stored medicine root. During the past three or four nights some of the root had been stolen and all of it was removed for safety the night before last. The defendant was on the shelf when first seen by the complainant.
